Transfer of Boston police [illegible] out of the detective [illegible], allegedly because of their friendship with him, was characterized today by John W. Haigis as "the rawest practice I have ever heard of in my 25 years of public life."

BOY BURNED IN MALDEN HIGH FIRE

One high school student was burned about the hands and 75 were driven to the street today by a fire in the Manual Arts building at Malden high school.

Alden Ellis of Bryant street, Malden, was slightly burned and was treated by Dr. John C. McCarthy.

More than 2000 students in the main high school building a few feet away remained unaware of the fire, that was confined to the second floor of the three-story, 80-year-old wooden structure.

An open, improvised, alcohol heater was ignited in some manner, and then several jugs of alcohol were tipped over.

Coleman and a brigade of boys, headed by Arnold Ayer, organized to fight the flames.

Melrose apparatus was called in to help. The Manual Arts building is directly across the street from Malden fire headquarters, in the heart of the business district.

Traffic was tied up for half an hour by the engines, and by the cars of frantic parents who sped to the scene when they learned the fire was in the school.

$2,000,000 Ruling In Beacon Shares Case Reversed

The record-breaking $2,000,000 decision of former Superior Court Judge John J. Burns in the Beacon Participations Case was reversed today by the full bench of the Massachusetts Supreme Court.

The high court ruled that the directors were not liable in two of the four allegations in the bill of complaint.

Prominent lawyers, studying the decision, expressed the opinion that it wiped out about $1,000,000 of the assessments made against the directors by Judge Burns.

HITS "BAD FAITH" FINDING

In a 36-page opinion, written by Chief Justice Arthur P. Rugg, the supreme court concluded:

"The final decree (of Judge Burns) is reversed and the case is to stand for further proceedings in conformity with this opinion."

Girl Friend Reveals Slain Model Resented Father

New York, April 1 (INS)—Beautiful Veronica Gedeon, tragic young model, never mentioned her father, Joseph Gedeon, eccentric upholsterer, friends in the artist world said today.

Ronnie showed a bitter resentment whenever she was asked about him.

"I live with my mother and for her," she told Elizabeth Ryan, lovely society model, "and I am her sole support!"

Interesting new revelations that might establish a motive for the brutal triple slaying were made by Miss Ryan, 20-year-old daughter of a prominent Riverdale family.

FRIVOLITY RULED RONNIE

Her name was one of over a hundred found in Ronnie's battered notebook, a literal directory of witnesses, found in the room where both mother and daughter were murdered.

Police said that this book is a major source of leads, and every person mentioned in it will be questioned.

"Frivolity ruled Ronnie," said Elizabeth, a strikingly beautiful blonde. "She was a wild girl with wild ways and she met with a wild fate. Her wanton love for freedom might well have driven

April Showers Due Tomorrow

April's first showers may descend upon Greater Boston tomorrow, the weather man declared today.

As befits the slow march of spring, it probably will be slightly warmer tonight and Friday, to start April off on the right foot.

What showers that come, however, will be light.

CIO ABSORBS TEXTILE UNION

Providence, R. I., April 1 (INS)—In one of the most far-reaching labor programs ever launched in the textile industry, the United Textile Workers of America, 100,000 members, today was absorbed by the textile workers organizing committee of the Committee for Industrial Organization.

Behind that move was a new drive to force organization of 1,250,000 textile workers throughout the country under the CIO banner of John L. Lewis, pioneer of "sit-down" strikes.

The program was seen in the appointment of Sidney Hillman of New York, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, as head of the textile division of CIO.

CIO plans to "invite" cotton, woolen and worsted, silk, and other textile manufacturers into conferences with a view to signing up with CIO.

GUARD SLAIN GIRL'S FATHER AT BIER

New York, April 1 — Detectives who ransacked Joseph Gedeon's upholstery shop as he sat impassively today through funeral rites for his slain wife and daughter announced that they had found a brown coat, but that vest and trousers were missing.

The coat was dispatched immediately to police laboratories for chemical examination. Gedeon was asked if this were the same brown coat he has been described as wearing the night of Beekman Hill's triple slaying—part of the "missing" brown suit.

"I can't remember what happened to that suit," was his reply. "That jacket doesn't belong to it. That's part of an old suit I just wore out."

At the same time a new ordeal awaited the father—A meeting with [illegible], commercial artist, who lives on the floor below the apartment where the murders took place.

HEARD WOMAN SCREAM

[illegible] suddenly entered the investigation today to tell [illegible] that he [illegible] seen a man in a brown suit [illegible] about the apartment house 24 hours before the murder.

[illegible] also told [illegible] that he was leaving his apartment Saturday night when he heard a woman's scream and a man groan. It was about 15 minutes before 11, [illegible] said, and the woman's voice screamed:

"Oh, oh, oh!"

The artist said that the man he met on the stairs pulled his hat [illegible] over his eyes and lighted a cigarette to shield his face just as he was passing. The man was short, of swarthy complexion and appeared to be [illegible] years old, [illegible] thought.

But the man wore a brown suit and a gray soft hat, the witness said, and police pointed out that Gedeon himself had injected a gray fedora into the case by reporting that he had lost such a

Harvard Teacher Weds

Ex-Aide to Deon Wins Peeress

Elliott Perkins, 36, former assistant dean at Harvard and now on leave of absence from the college, was married in London today to Mary Frances Baker-Wilbraham, 32, daughter of an English baronet, according to word received here.

Perkins, due back at Harvard next September to begin a three-year appointment as an instructor of history and literature, is the eldest son of Thomas Nelson Perkins of Westwood, chairman of the Boston & Maine Railroad and a Harvard University trustee.

According to the London dispatch, the couple were married in the Chelsea register office and plan to sail for New York tomorrow.

Mrs. Perkins is the second daughter of Sir Philip Baker-Wilbraham, English baronet and barrister.

This is Perkins' second marriage. He was married on June 16, 1927, to Miss Josephine Choate, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Choate, Jr., of Southboro.

Two years later, however, they were divorced. There are no children.

Perkins, one of the most popular Harvard officials when he was assistant dean, was graduated from the Cambridge university in 1923 with an A.B. degree. He was appointed assistant dean two years later and was also named a tutor in history and literature.

He has been on leave of absence since the first of the year.

GUARD FATHER AS HE KNEELS NEAR MODEL'S COFFIN

BROWN COAT FOUND; FACES NEW MURDER GRILL

hat Sunday morning—when Ronnie Gedeon died.

CAN'T REMEMBER SUIT

The brown suit was described by several of the persons in Corrigan's Cafe where Gedeon had spent some time both Saturday night and Sunday morning.

Police said when they first asked the father about it, he denied ever having had a brown suit. Then they quoted him as having said:

"I can't remember! I can't remember what became of it."

Gedeon astonished both official police observers and curious outsiders by the calm he perserved this morning when he was taken to McCabe's funeral parlors, under guard of two burly detectives, to tend last rites for his dead.

They thought he would at least break down at sight of the two still forms in their gray-draped caskets.

What else they thought must be forgotten. But trained observers were scattered at strategic vantage points all round the funeral chaptel to watch every move of Gedeon and note his reactions as he gazed into the faces of the beautiful Ronnie and her 54-year-old mother.

FAILS TO "BREAK"

But, after briskly pushing his way through a sidewalk throng of 500 persons and an inside gathering of about a hundred more, Gedeon made way to chairs in front for both himself and his guards.

Then he sat, unmoved and impassive, throughout the entire services. His head was bowed in his hands and his lower jaw quivered, it seemed, but perhaps it was only the movements of his lips in prayer.

Continuing the unusually matter-of-fact calmness noted in his behavior since discovery of the murders, Gedeon evinced no emotion even when he peered down at the biers of his wife and daughter.

Later he was given an opportunity to be alone in the chapel with his dead for a brief period before the funeral procession.

Others attending the services included Ronnie's sister, Fthel, and her husband, Joseph Kuaner, both of whom had been invited with their estranged father to dinner at Mrs. Gedeon's apartment Sunday afternoon; Stephen Butter, youth who entertained Ronnie Saturday night and bid her good-night on the stairs a few moments before she went in to be strangled to death, Lincoln Hauser, another young man who had been attentive to the girl, and Sarilla Bell and Mary Beacco, two girl friends, also models.

As soon as the services were over, Gedeon was whisked through the crowd of bystanders—who jammed forward to get a better look at him—then sped off in a police car.

Earlier today the Gedeon family had announced that there would be services in the chapel of St. Gregory the Great, a Catholic church nearby in 90th street, but the plans were not followed through.

Gedeon was not handcuffed to his guards, although many a curious eye sought to see if he were.

Formally he was under arrest for violation of New York's stern Sullivan Act, which forbids possession of firearms without a permit. A pistol had been found in a cubbyhole in the back room sleeping quarters of Gedeon's upholstery shop.

But high authorities had said that "under no consideration would he be released for the time being." And even an arrest on the Sullivan Act admits bail.

HOW ALIBI "BROKE"

It was the constant questioning, protracted for days, that broke down what appeared at first to have been "the perfect alibi," police said.

When Gedeon was questioned immediately after the finding of the bodies on Sunday afternoon, he said he had gone to the apartment for the first time with his daughter and son-in-law for the Easter reconciliation dinner.

He placed that time at 3:30 p. m. Police received the telephone call of the finding of the bodies at 3:33 p. m.

Yet a woman was found who claimed to have seen Gedeon in the apartment house approximately an hour before 3:30—alone.

Gedeon denied that, but started to say that he might have walked around outside of the house, then changed his mind, police claimed.

That, however, was not nearly so important as to where he had been and what he had been doing between 8:41 Saturday night and 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

THAT FATEFUL NIGHT

Gedeon insisted that he had been at Corrigan's Cafe, just around the corner from his 34th street upholstery shop and sleeping quarters, from about 7 o'clock Saturday night until long after three Sunday morning.

He cited how he had piled up the highest score of the evening playing skee-ball, had had a few drinks, gone home and slept until Sunday, when he went back to Corrigan's to claim the $1 skee-ball prize he had won.

Several persons stepped up to back Gedeon's statements. Certainly, they remembered him being around all night. Cologero Parlapiano, the bartender, was "sure of it."

But, one by one, those questioned became a bit more vague about certain times in that 7 p. m. to 3 a. m. interval.

Some recalled that they really hadn't seen Gedeon after nine Saturday night although they knew he was "around."

Others who cheered him for his skee-ball prowess began to figure that it was really quite late—midnight or later, perhaps— when they saw him, come to think of it.

PARLAPIANO CHANGES

Parlapiano began to think back a little more clearly as police plied him with questions. After a couple of hours yesterday morning, after he had repeated his convictions for the fourth or fifth time, he "wasn't so sure" about Gedeon being in Corrigan's "all night."

The fact was, said Parlapiano, while Gedeon was in the place early in the night, it was in the three hours or so before closing time—3 a. m. Sunday, he remembered better.

He remembered that because of the skee-ball prize and because he had to remind Gedeon that it was time to close, about 2:55 o'clock.

When interrogators put all the pieces together, they had witnesses who had seen Gedeon in Corrigan's from 7 to 9 p. m., Saturday. And they had witnesses who had seen him from midnight until 3 a. m., Sunday.

HOURS OF DEATH

But the time of Mrs. Gedeon's death and the time of Byrnes' death was approximately 11 p. m., Saturday. And Ronnie Gedeon was alive until a few minutes after 3 o'clock Sunday morning.

Gedeon, police maintained, had not been able to account to their satisfaction for his movements between visits to Corrigan's, nor why he was reported seen walking home at 4 a. m., Sunday, if he had left a place "just around the corner," at 3 a. m.

The Beekman Hill apartment, where the three murders took place, is about a 15-minute walk from either Corrigan's or Gedeon's upholstery shop, detectives estimate.

FIND MAN'S GLOVE

Police also disclosed that a man's gray suede glove, size 8, had been found in the Gedeon apartment, beneath the big double bed that Veronica and her mother shared in the middle room.

This glove, for the right hand, was tried on Gedeon. Police said it fitted loosely.

District Attorney Dodge's statement of a "definite suspect" came as the first hint of real progress by police since the finding Sunday afternoon of the three bodies.

Dodge would not name the "suspect" or even say whether it was a man or a woman. Police Commissioner Valentine, apparently less optimistic than the district attorney, said he had no comment on the status of the inquiry.

The police announced today that the fingerprints of everyone questioned thus far had been compared with a thumb print found on the bathroom floor, and that none matched.

Predicting an early arrest in the triple murder mystery, Dodge, the sandy-haired prosecutor in personal charge of the investigation, said:

"I can state positively that we have a definite suspect."

MICHIGAN DEAN SEES PERIL IN PRESIDENT'S COURT PLAN

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON

International News Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, April 1 (INS)—Henry M. Bates, dean of Michigan University's law school, today assailed President Roosevelt's court plan as "unnecessary, unwise and dangerous."

Appearing before the Senate judiciary committee, Bates warned adoption of the plan would lead inevitably to destruction of the American system of government and substitution of a parliamentary system, such as have gone to ruin in parts of Europe.

Bates was to be followed by John T. Flynn, New York writer and economist, who as denhounced the plan.

There were repercussions on Capitol Hill to the attacks on Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes by Senator Minton (D.) of Indiana, and on Associate Justice Owen D. Roberts by Senator Schwellenbach (D.) of Washington.

BURKE HITS ATTACKERS

Minton said the chief justice had "played politics" by attacking the President's plan in a letter to the Senate judiciary committee, while Schwellenbach declared Justice Roberts, whose reversed vote upheld the Washington state minimum wage law, had "more power than Hitler or Mussolini."

Senator Burke (D) of Nebraska, foe of the presidential plan, said:

"Their case must be woefully weak when they desert the issue and indulge in personalities."

Bates told the committee he sympathized with the President's objectives and praised his efforts to "relieve distress and promote recovery." He warned the court plan was a temporary expedient, not certain of success, which raised grave fears for the future of America.

IMPAIR JUDICIARY

"It would certainly impair the prestige and the independence of the judiciary and partially prevent the accomplishment of the very sound purpose for which it was provided," said Bates.

"No matter how wise and disinterested President Roosevelt might be in appointing additional members of he court, this bill, if enacted into law, sets an example and offers a means of future manipulation of the bench with the most serious consequences of evil."

'WILD GIRL, WILD FATE,' FRIEND'S SUMMARY

any parent to distraction. Mention Mr. Gedeon's name and she would betray her annoyance and change the subject."

Lauding Ronnie as being generous, gay and friendly, Miss Ryan stated that she was governed by sudden impulses.

"Restlessness in her nature," she said, "destroyed her good judgment. She was always curious about life, love and anything that happened along, and she saw to it that she satisfied this craving freely.

"Vanity prompted her in displaying her body. She complained that she lacked the proper environment.

"'My life is guided by materialism,' she once remarked."

"I first met Ronnie last year," continued Elizabeth, "From the first I was attracted to her by her vivacity, charm and friendly spirit, but her defiance of convention made me afraid to cultivate the friendship.

"She always snapped her finger at danger, and she readily acquiesced to random invitations from men she scarcely knew. Dancing, drinking and petting, all of these modern indulgences, were Ronnie's."

A love for clothes and the prettier things of life was a feminine trait of the popular slain model.

"She was something like seven-eighths of an iceberg," Elizabeth said. "That amount is said to be invisible to the eye. On the surface Ronnie was gay, but she carefully hid from view her past. Perhaps the one who knew of it was the cause of her destruction. Once she hinted something was wrong. She said:

She failed to realize the serious consequences of being always the "good fellow."

"She simply had no ability to grasp the higher things of life. She couldn't resist a good time.

"That the spirit of libertinism was a part of her was evident in her love for nude posing, that so shocked her friends. I remember when she came into a certain agency. When the manager discussed her qualifications and learned she would pose in the nude he rejected her, because he refuses to engage that type of model."

Head Blow Killed Cambridge Man

Medical Examiner David C. Dow reported today that the death of George Callahan, 40, of Cambridge street, Cambridge, who was found unconscious on a street in East Cambridge, was probably due to a blow of a small but heavy instrument.

Callahan died at Cambridge City Hospital Monday night, a short time after he was found injured. Police have already questioned five men and are looking for a sixth man, who is said to have remarked he was with Callahan at the time he was injured.

Kaufman Off to Movies; Ban Lifted

Los Angeles, April 1 (US)—George S. Kaufman, Broadway playwright and leading man in beautiful Mary Astor's torrid love diary, no longer is in contempt of California's courts and is reported en route back to Hollywood to continue writing for the movies.

Presiding Judge Fletcher Bowron recently signed an order dismissing a contempt warrant against the playwright which grew out of the now famous Mary Astor-Dr. Franklyn Thorpe child custody action.

Man Near Death In Gasoline Blast

After having his clothes burned from his body in a gasoline explosion, Samuel Puzone, 34, of North Main street, Randolph, was in critical condition today at Forest Hills Hospital.

Sold Down the River

Des Moines, April 1 (AP)—Andrew Flori, unemployed coal miner, in a newspaper advertisement, offered to "sell himself in slavery," hoping, through the publicity, to obtain a job.

His best offer was $10 a week to do yard work.

Dry Leaguer Sees Good in Repeal

Alexandria, Va., April 1 (US)—An official of the Anti-Saloon League of America here sees some good in repeal. Edward B. Dunnington, attorney for the organization, told a meeting here repeal was an improvement over national prohibition, explaining:

"We were unable to enforce the 18th Amendment. The 21st Amendment, which turns regulation back to the states, can be enforced."

3 Die on Thin Ice

Schenectady, N. Y., April 1 (INS) Three small children, two sisters and a brother, were drowned today as they broke through the thin ice in Vale cemetery pond.

Mary Pickford Off to St. Moritz

Paris, April 1 (US)—Mary Pickford today was on her way to Switzerland for a wintry sports holiday at St. Moritz. Before she left here, the film actress parried questions as to the exact date of her forthcoming marriage to Buddy R orchestra leader.

Probably, though, she wil come Mrs. Rogers soon afte return to the United States. S will sail April 28 on the Mary.

RONNIE FEARED 'EASTER FATE'

Boy Friend Reveals Model's Premonitions of Evil

New York, April 1—She was afraid something was going to happen to spoil her Easter.

Sometimes on Easter it rained—when a beautiful young girl wanted to appear in her beautiful new finery . . .

Sometimes on Easter a "date" went wrong—when an eager young girl was planning a day of gayety and happiness . . .

Sometimes on Easter unpleasantness marred the family dinner—when a young girl hoped all would be joyful, peaceful . . .

"Something always happens at Easter," Ronnie Gedeon said.

She said it half-seriously, half-jokingly, to "Steve" Butter, the boy who was "taking care of her" for her fiance because the latter, Lincoln Hauser, was away with his family for the Easter week-end.

Easter Foreboding

Just what time it was Ronnie said that, young Butter isn't sure. But it was during the last few hours of the evening they spent together, eating spaghetti, having a a few cocktails and dancing, with friends.

"Something always happens on Easter . . ."

When she told Butter goodnight, it was already Easter—three hours past midnight, but Ronnie Gedeon didn't dream how prophetic her own words were.

She couldn't have dreamed it, or she wouldn't have stepped so casually through her apartment door where a flame-eyed slayer lurked in wait for her in the darkness.

Murder couldn't have entered her mind when she talked of "something" happening.

But it was the age-old saw of "truth in jest" coming true with vengeance.

Butter realized that bitterly today. He's been realizing it bitterly for five days. The five days since Ronnie's strangled body was hurled across a bed and since her mother's strangled body was hurled under a bed and since Frank Byrnes' stabbed body was found lying in his bed.

"Ronnie had funny intuitions sometimes," Butter said. "We used to kid her about it."

Then he couldn't talk any more, except to mumble:

"And I was the one who was to take care of her for Link . . ."

Others in Ronnie's family heard those words repeated by Butter—that "Something always happens on Easter" — and they remembered Ronnie's premonitions at different times in her life.

But it wasn't because she wasn't a good girl, they insisted. Rather because she was.

World All Wrong

"The world doesn't know her as we did," they said. "The world has a wrong picture of her. There wasn't any reason for a thing like this to have happened to her.

"There was nothing in her life that should have led to such a tragedy. No one should have wanted to hurt Ronnie.

"No one should have wanted to hurt her mother. Her mother was kind. She was fine and friendly—she made it a rule in her life never to make enemies. She had none."

They refused to theorize as to what they might believe led to the tragedy, but said:

"A man who would do a thing like that might not necessarily have been insane. A depraved man might have done it, showing also the working of a very logical mind. But it's a ghastly matter. Perhaps even a greater realization will come as the shock lessens a little."

"Ronnie was not frivolous—definitely not. That's absurd. Her father is very much upset, naturally, and because of this might be inclined to state as facts things which properly are a product of the imagination. You mustn't forget that after his separation from Mrs. Gedeon he didn't see a great deal of Veronica, though they were friends.

"The so-called multi-millionaires with whom she is supposed to have spent her time—they're imagination, too. She was associated with many well-to-do artists in connection with her business, and most of her social engagements were in connection with her modeling.

"We know she met a wealthy man from Boston just once. He sent her flowers for a week—he had a nursery or something like that—and then stopped."

"Not a Flirt"

In a social sense, it was Ronnie's rule to go out with single men, it was explained. And she was not a heartless flirt. The family spokesman declared:

"Ronnie was not jilting men all the time. What actually happened was not jilting, by any means—just what would naturally occur in the ordinary course of an attractive girl's life. She was very young.

"She was gay and happy. Humor and wit were her outstanding traits. And she had a great deal of good sense—more sense than would be superficially evident, sometimes; and a very good head."

Ronnie went into modeling because she liked it. She had social acquaintances among artists who advised her that she was remarkably suited for the work. She was very close to Mrs. Gedeon, but she also was fond of her father. The family explained:

"Ronnie understood the European point of view—that a father's word is conclusive—but she felt, being an American girl, that she shouldn't be restricted in every phase of her living."

THE BRIGHTER SIDE

By DAMON RUNYON

Copyright, 1937, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. International and all other rights reserved.

A series of lectures on the psychological problems of men and women more than 65 years of age is being sponsored by the New York City committee on mental hygiene of the State's Charities Association.

We are informed in the public prints that among the questions to be considered is this:

Damon Runyon

"Why does Grandpa collect odds and ends of useless things?"

Also:

"Why does Grandma keep the bureau drawer cluttered up with old photographs which no one, not even she, ever looks at?"

Likewise:

"Why must they (Grandpa and Grandma) have porridge when all the rest of the family prefer modern breakfast food?"

And still another:

"Could we move out of this increasingly shabby neighborhood without seriously upsetting them?"

We hasten to assure the reader that the names of the ladies and gentlemen associated with the committee preclude the possibility of the questions being in the nature of persiflage.

They are serious-minded ladies and gentlemen. If you asked them "How far is up?" the chances are they would give the question their earnest consideration. And they might come out with the right answer at that.

Damon's Survey

They are interested in what they term the psychological changes in the process of growing old, though up to this time we did not know there was anything psychological about it. We thought it was just a matter of increasing backache.

Nonetheless, with our usual helpful spirit, we have been canvassing for information that might assist the committee in its consideration of the questions set forth.

We have been making inquiry among men and women of our acquaintance of more than 65 years of age, as to why they do thus and so, and we may be able to save the committee a lot of trouble.

We have discovered why Grandma and Grandpa must have porridge when all the rest of the family prefers breakfast food. It is because Grandma and Grandpa like porridge.

Fears to Offend

A very nice grandma enlightened us on this point. She did not presume to say that her reason for the bureau drawer loaded with unlooked at photographs covers all the grandmas in the world, but she rather implied that she will take a little 6 to 5 that it comes close. She is a right sporting grandma.

The photographs in her bureau drawer are the photographs of her children, and grandchildren, in varying stages of their growth. She does not throw them away, or burn them, because she does not wish to offend the subjects. Besides, she thinks it is bad luck to destroy a photograph.

But this very nice grandma finally admitted to us that among her collection of old photographs, there is one that she takes out once in a while and ponders, though no other human eye ever is permitted to gaze upon it.

It is a photograph of a young fellow in the khaki uniform and turned-up hat of Mr. Teddy Roosevelt's Rough Riders. Grandma wonders, as she ponders this photograph, if she did not err in passing up Harley's last offer of marriage. He did not like children.

Granapa's Ideas

We asked several grandpas why they collect odds and ends of useless things, and in all but one case received the same answer:

"What useless things?"

That stumped us. The committee has not specified.

The exception said:

"I don't know why. I have been collecting odds and ends of useless things so long that I guess it is now an unbreakable habit. It runs through my family, too.

"I am the owner of a large collection of useless promissory notes from my son-in-law. He is useless himself. He has a wonderful collection of useless stock. My daughter, his wife, has a tremendous collection of useless friends.

"My grandson has lately been collecting useless habits. My grand-daughter is marrying a useless foreign fellow. She is useless, too. Maybe the committee would like to interview me."

A Great Scheme

We did not go very far with the question, obviously raised by the younger generation with reference to grandma and grandpa, that is to be considered by the committee:

"Could we move out of this increasingly shabby neighborhood without seriously upsetting them?"

Of the six sets of grandpas and grandmas we polled, five held us up for interminable periods explaining that they positively would not be upset if the children and grandchildren would leave them there, and promise not to come back.

The sixth set tried to induce us to go to a police station with them and help them bring about the removal of the children and grandchildren immediately.

These elders have no respect for their youngers.

TWO LOST OFF HUB SCHOONER

With her flag at half-mast, the Boston fishing schooner Shamrock, Captain Fred Wilson, arrived at Boston Fish Pier today and reported the loss of two of her crew in a gale last Tuesday afternoon.

Drowned at sea when their dory overturned while they were hauling trawls were dorymates Joseph Pimental, 60, of 35 Bristol st., Cambridge, and John Marshal, 60, of Provincetown.

Captain Wilson reported to his owners, O'Hara Brothers, that the schooner was standing a quarter mile from the dory when it overturned. By the time the schooner was able to maneuver to the spot, the men had vanished.

The schooner brought in 61,000 pounds of mixed fish.

According to the captain the fishermen were lost on the Cape Shore fishing grounds, 20 miles off Little Hope, Nova Scotia.

Employed by the firm of Henry and Close at the Fish Pier, Pimental's son saw the Shamrock coming in today with her flag half-masted.

The son ran down the dock to inquire for his father, and when he learned the father was one of two lost, broke down. A short time later the son left for his home in Cambridge to break the news to his mother.

17,700 JOBLESS IN NEW GENERAL MOTOR SITS

Detroit, April 1 (INS)—New sit-down strikes descended upon the $210,000,000 General Motors Corporation today, elss than a month after the company had signed its "permanent peace agreement" with the United Auto Workers' Union.

A total of 17,700 men were left idle.

Four General Motors plants in two cities were closed because of sit-downs, and a fifth plant in which General Motors holds stock was also seized by sit-downers. Two other General Motors plants also were closed but reopened a short time later.

Fisher Body at Pontiac—6,600 affected.

Chevrolet No. 2 at Flint—900 affected.

Plants closed because of the two strikes were:

Pontiac Motor Company at Pontiac—2600.

YELLO WTRUCK SIT

In addition, a sit-down strike forced closing of the Yellow Truck and Coach Manufacturing Company at Pontiac in which General Motors holds stock. General Motors officials explained, however, that Yellow Truck was not a part of the GM corporation and not covered in the March 12 permanent peace agreement with the UAW. About 6500 men were affected by the truck company strike.

Sit-downs also broke out at the Buick plant No. 11, affecting 1000 men, and the Fisher Body plant at Cleveland, affecting 7200 men. However, the latter two strikes, both of them over wage disputes, were settled after three hours and the plants reopened.

The sit-downs, apparently spontaneous, were occuring so fast for a time today that General Motors officials themselves had difficulty in following developments. Uniquely, the Pontiac assemply plant at Pontiac closed down because it could get no auto bodies from the strike-bound Fisher plant there, while the Fisher plant No. 2 at Flint closed down because it had no place to send its bodies because of the strike in Chevrolet No. 2.

PROTEST TO UAW

High General Motors officials, it was learned, made immediate represenation to the UAW, charging the strikes comprised direct violation of the "permanent peace agreement" under which the union had agreed to submit grievances to arbitration.

After receiving the protest, Ed Hall, a UAW vice-president, hurried over to the General Motors offices here and went into conference with H. W. Anderson, personnel director. Hall said:

"These strikes are a protest of the men against the plant managers refusing to recognize and deal with their committees as provided in the General Motors agreement."

The danger spot on the General Motors' strike front today was regarded as Pontiac. During the recent 44-day strikes there, non-union workers ejected union workers from one plant when the unionists attempted to stage a sit-down.

MURPHY AFTER FACT

Large crowds were milling in streets in front of Pontiac plants and police took immediate precautions to prevent a clash between union and non-union workers there.

Negotiations were underway to end the shut-downs but even with settlement, General Motors, it was learned, may demand new assurances from the union against stoppage of work because of strikes.

At Lansing, Governor Frank Murphy, when informed of the new outbreak of strikes, declared:

"This trouble will be ironed out immediately."

He said he would not comment further until he had made a study into the Pontiac, Flint and Cleveland disputes.

The new epidemic of General Motors sit-downs came at a time when 100,000 auto workers were already idle because of strikes in the Chrysler, Hudson and Reo auto plants in Detroit and Lansing.

The new trouble came on the eve of resumption of the auto strike peace parley between Governor Murphy, Walter P. Chrysler and John L. Lewis at Lansing tomorrow. The latter conference is designed to find a solution to the strikes which threw a total of 60,000 Chrysler workers out of jobs.

Druggist Sells Store, Kills Self

Derry, N. H., April 1 (AP)—Harry L. Renson, 61, druggist, who sold two days ago a business he had conducted 37 years, was found dead in bed today. Medical Referee William Wilson said he was a suicide from an overdose of medicine.

On N. E. Labor Front

Garment Workers Out on Strike

A strike of 375 men and women at the clothing factory of M. S. Kondagian & Sons on Coolidge Hill road, Watertown, halted work at that place today and marked the first activity of the CIO in the clothing industry in Greater Boston.

Only 25 employes of the Watertown concern, all cutters, reported for work, the others gathering outside the plant.

There was no disturbance, but police ordered them away. They gathered in Dexter Hall, Watertown, for a mass meeting which CIO organizers addressed.

The strike was called, according to the employes, who are members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, because of the discharge of four girls without notice.

VOTE ON COMPROMISE

Meanwhile coal and oil truck drivers were assembled at Washington Hall, 900 Washington street, South End, voting on the compromise proposed by the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration to end the strike which, starting yesterday, threatened serious consequences.

Two strikers arrested yesterday in Quincy and Weymouth in connection with fuel strike activities were arraigned in Quincy court today.

Donald McKinnon, 27, of 17 Grossman street, Quincy, pleaded not guilty to charges of breaking glass in the home of John Jones, 74 East Squantum street, Quincy, a foreman for the Frost Coal Co.

Joseph Barry, 50 Wrentham street, Dorchester, pleaded not guilty to a charge of using profane language.

Both cases were continued until April 8. Bond was set at $50 each.

General opinion in labor circles was that the compromise would be accepted.

By its terms, drivers get approximately a 10 per cent wage increase and a slight reduction in working hours.

Weekly pay or regular drivers will be $36, that of helpers $32.

WORK WEEK VARIES

Both drivers and helpers will work 40 hours a week for four months of the year, 44 hours a week for the next four months and 48 hours a week for the final four months.

For the first hour of overtime work, extra pay will be 85 cents. For overtime work in a 48-hour week, time and a half will be paid.

The CIO launched its first activity in Haverhill today when soleworkers, 250 in number, employed by three companies, went on strike. They want a 15 per cent increase, according to Leo Hamilton, agent of the Shoe Workers' Protective Union.

The manufacturers offered an 8 per cent increase. The companies affected are the Ellis Cut Sole, C. H. Horne and Archibald Cut Sole companies.

Governor's Secretary Paul C. Ryan today began investigation of charges made against Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin by the Brockton Brotherhood of Shoe and Allied Crafts.

The brotherhood protested "interference" by Goodwin in Brockton labor affairs. Said Goodwin:

"These charges against me are just Communist propaganda. Brockton shoe workers voted 3000 to 2000 against joining John L. Lewis' Committee on Industrial Organization.

"Then some of their leaders, looking for soft CIO jobs, tried to put a fast one over by calling in Communist spell-binders to line everybody up, in spite of themselves, under CIO rule.

"If they succeed, Brockton will be ruined."

The CIO which has created a crisis in the shoe industry in the Lewiston-Auburn district in Maine today moved into Waterville, Me., to organize clothing workers.

A group of employes of the C. F. Hathaway Shirt Company of Waterville, voted to join the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union and to ask for shorter hours and more pay. About 100 of the company's 270 employes did not join the group at the outset.

4500 SHOE WORKERS IDLE

The CIO claims 4500 of the 6400 Auburn-Lewiston shoe workers are out on strike, but the manufacturers denied the union had made such gains.

The manufacturers admitted, however, that several of the 19 factories were not "crippled."

The sit-down strike of employes of the Vesta Underwear Company in Providence, mostly girls, continued today but the sit-down strike of 125 employes of the Rumford Chemical Works, East Providence, ended without public announcement of the terms ofsettlement.

An injunction against the Independent Textile Union of Woonsocket, forbidding them to picket a Woolworth store, where 17 employes went on strike for higher wages, was issued by Superior Court Judge Herbert L. Carpenter.

GRANT PAY RAISES

Wage increases ere granted this morning to 1300 more New England employes.

Increases were granted by the Livingston Worsted Mills, Holyoke; Mason & Parker, toy manufacturers, at Winchendon and Royalston, and the Berkshire Upholstered Furniture Co. of Williamsett.

J. C. Richdale, manager of the New England sales division of the Colonial Beacon Oil Company, announced pay increases for clerical and other salaried employes, some 600 of whom will benefit.

These raises are coincidental with a series of increases negotiated by thousands of wage earners in conferences with the management, according to Manager Richdale.

In another Rhode Island sit-down strike, 350 women workers of the Triad Manufacturing Co. of Pawtucket asked shorter hours and higher wages. At Valley Falls, R. I., 150 employes of the Atlas Braid Co. walked out.

400,000 MINERS SET TO STRIKE

New York, April 1 (AP)—An almost nationwide soft coal strike will start tomorrow unless a deadlock in wage negotiations between the operators and United Mine Workers is broken before tonight.

The strike would be the largest this year, involving about 400,000 miners scattered from central Pennsylvania to the state of Washington.

Mines would operate only in the Illinois territory controlled by the Progressive Miners of America and in the few other scattered fields the United Mine Workers have not organized.

Operators estimate the country has about 30 days' coal supply above ground.

U. M. W. miners took today off to celebrate "John L. Lewis Day," a holiday commemorating the institution of the eight-hour day in 1898.

Lewis said they would stay away from work tomorrow, too, unless they were notified a new wage and hour contract had been signed. The old contract expired at midnight last night. It was signed in September, 1935, after President Roosevelt had stepped into he negotiations five times to prevent a strike. He was not altogether successful. After the expiration of the fifth extension of the 1934 contract, the miners struck for six days.

Chorines War on Models

Film Girls Stage Brief Sit-Down

Hollywood, April 1 (AP) — The blonde beauty suggested a sit-down strike among — of all people — a group of Hollywood chorines.

The director and straw-bosses had not returned from lunch. The chorines were idling about.

"Why do they bring these girls in from New York when right here in Hollywood are girls prettier, more talented and needing jobs bad?" asked Miss McMahon.

Miss McMahon declared something should be done about it—a sit-down strike would be the thing.

The idea was embraced noisily. At this crisis Dance Director Dave Gould came upon the scene with a call to arms, legs and rhythm.

He would, Gould said when the impasse was explained to him, avoid hiring any New York models for his shows.

STRIKE GRIPS ALL INDIA

Bombay, April 1 (INS)—Despite elaborate precautions by officials to prevent it, a general strike gripped virtually all India today as nationwide religious ceremonies of mourning marked inauguration of provincial autonomy under the new constitution.

Spread of the strike, in the face of statements by authorities that a move of this sort or other anti-constitution demonstrations would be barred, brought Britain face to face with still another serious problem to add to her worries over the European situation.

Banks were the only commerce concerns doing business in Bombay, where the stock exchange, commodity markets, stores and nationalist newspapers as well as mills were closed.

Small processions of All-India Congress Party adherents, whose leaders have refused to accept office under prevailing conditions in six provinces, paraded Bombay streets, halting before European stores and banks and shouting:

"Boycott the Constitution!"

Detective Murphy, for 17 years in plain clothes work and for 10 years head of the shoplifting squad, goes back into uniform at Mattapan station.

It is all because they were three of 14 police officers present at a birthday party in Murphy's Mattapan home when Haigis dropped in for 30 minutes to pay his respects, according to Haigis.

HAIGIS AT PARTY

The party was held at the Murphy home, 167 Milton avenue, last September 14, and Haigis dropped in on his way to Boston from Nantasket and greeted Murphy, whom he has known for 11 years, through their interest in war veterans' organizations.

From his law offices in Greenfield today, Haigis told the Boston Evening American:

"I am indeed sorry that these men, Officers Joyce, Decker and Murphy, experts in their respective police duties, must suffer because they are friends of mine.

"Unfortunately for them, perhaps, I consider them my close personal friends, but they would have been the last to take any part in my camjaign.

CHERISHES FRIENDSHIP

"However, their confidence in me in continuing our friendship, even through a politcal campaign, I will always cherish.

"This move is the cheapest procedure I have ever heard of in my 35 years of public life. I didn't believe a Governor could be small enough. However, it has happened, but I don't believe we will ever see such a small thing occur again."

Haigis said he has known Decker since 1917, when they first met in war days. Detective Decker is a veteran of the 255th aerial squadron, served 16 months overseas and was in five major engagements.

The former candidate for governor met Murphy at an American Legion conference soon after the war and they have visited each other several times a year since then with the exception of a single year. Murphy saw 20 years service in the navy.

TIMILTY PROTESTS

Haigis has known Sergeant Joyce since they met at a convention in another city years ago.

Police Commissioner Joseph F. Timilty continued to protest today that his sweepin police shakeup, which included these transfers, was not mainly at direction of Governor Hurley. Many thought otherwise.

The shakeup involves practically one-fifth of the force, goes into effect at 7:45 a. m. tomorrow, and from a survey of the ranks today is considered by many to be the most demoralizing shakeup in history, so far as the morale of the men is concerned.

Bitterness swept through the ranks with amazing swiftness, and older men commented that none of the "kidding" that usually accompanies shakeups was heard.

The reorganization program involves one deputy superintendent, a captain, 13 lieutenants, 51 sergeants, and 240 patrolmen.

It abolishes as a separate unit the racket squad headed by Captain James T. Sheehan, which will merge with the special service squad under Deputy Superintendent William W. Livingston, and re-establishes the harbor police station wiped out by former Commissioner Eugene C. Hultman.

21 WIN PROMOTIONS

Supplementing the huge transfer plan, the commissioner announced promotion of 21 men, 10 sergeants gaining the rank of lieutenant and 11 patrolmen being made sergeants. Names for promotions were taken from the civil service list right down the line because of Civil Service Commissioner Thomas H. Green's refusal to authorize a "level list."

It has been rumored that Governor Hurley had sent Commissioner Timilty a long list of men who opposed him in the last election with the request they be transferred to the "sticks," but it was found few of those transferred were anti-Hurley.

Deputy Superintendent John M. Anderson leaves the superintendent's office for the bureau of records in a permanent assignment. The bureau of operations at headquarters is made a separate unit for the first time, with Lieutenant Lawrence L. Watts, present commander in charge.

HEADS HARBOR STATION

Absorption of the racket squad by the special service squad was explained by Commissioner Timilty as a means of broadening the scope of Captain Sheehan.

Patrolman John T. Bresnahan, personal aide to Governor Hurley, who will be assigned to the bureau of criminal investigation with powers far above his rank.

"This shift will by no means retard the activities of Captain Sheehan and his squad," Timilty said. "I want to make this plain. It is our intention to increase the activities of this squad. In addition to continuing his war on rackets, Captain Sheehan and his men will now take on the investigation of major crimes."

Commissioner Timilty denied he was breakng up the bureau of criminal investigation, though only three men were assigned there to replace 25 men transferred.

BUREAU OVERMANNED

"We still have about 65 men there," he said. "I considered that the detective bureau was overmaned and that there was not enough work for the 95 men attached to that unit. Those to be transferred were decided by Superindendent Edward W. Fallon and Deputy Superintendent James R. Claflin."

Among detectives shifted was Patrolman Edward A. McDonnell, whose discovery of the battery clue led to the arrest of the Millen brothers and Abraham Faber, later executed for the Needham bank holdup murder. McDonnell goes to the Fields Corner station.

Patrolman John C. Bresnahan, Governor Hurley's aide, stays with the bureau and Patrolman Edward J. Monahan, brother of Judge Joseph M. Monahan of Cambridge, a close friend of Hurley's, is transfererd from the Jamaica Plain stion to the bureau.

DETECTIVE TRANSFERS

Patrolmen-detectives transferred included Joseph L. Murphy of the shoplifting squad, to Mattapan; John L. Pimental, formerly of the narcotics squad, to West Roxbury; Eldred Adair to South Boston; Herbert F. Anderson to Brighton; Walter Armstrong, radical squad, to Warren avenue station; Guido Biaggi, radical squad, to Dudley street.

Francis T. Cahill, shoplifting squad, to Fields Corner; John J. Callahan to Milk street; Clarence A. Cobb, automobile squad, to East Boston; William Cohen, hotel squad to Dudley street; George L. Drown to Roxbury Crossing; Paul I. Fraher, general investigation, to Dudley street; Joseph A. Marshall to Charlestown.

Joseph D. McGillivray, clerk, to South Boston; Clarence P. Shaw to Fields Corner; George J. Smith to Charlestown; Joseph Decker, head of hotel squad, to Milk street station; George A. McDonald to traffic division, and Frederick T. Sewell to bureau of records.

Sally's Founder To Be Honored

Plans for an observance in New England of Founder's Day, April 10, birth anniversary of General William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army, are being arranged between headquarters here and national headquarters in New York.

In connection with the occasion, General Edward J. Higgins, retired, who was Evangeline Booth's predecessor as international leader of the organization will, on that date, begin in Boston a tour of several cities in southern New England.

SPAIN REBEL UPRISINGS REPORTED

By the Associated Press

Spain's Government troops had pushed their pursuit of Generalissimo Francisco Franco's Insurgents on three widely-separated fronts today.

Bitter revolts—despite mass executions and arrests to crush them—were reported to have spread in new sections of Insurgent-held Spain.

The counter-revolts against the Insurgent leaders, first reported in Spanish Morocco, may have engulfed the key centers of Valladolid and Algeciras and even in Salamanca, seat of Franco's government.

REBELS GAIN

Franco's men gained ground in a new assault on the Bilbao sector of the northern front. Insurgent airmen who bombed Durango, 16 miles southeast of Bilbao, killed 60 persons and injured 150.

Europe saw these repercussions: Both Italy and Germany apparently were still in agreement not to permit "Bolshevism of Spain."

Mussolini, they said, remained confident the insurgents would win and for the time being would respect the European non-intervention agreement, but if the Spanish government continued to receive foreign aid, Italy stands ready to reassume full liberty of action.

A high official in Hitler's government fave an intimation of his view in the terse phrase, "we will never tolerate a Communist government in Spain." Germans were uneasy as to what recent Insurgent defeats in Spain would mean.

NEW ARMAMENT RACE

Great Britain and France embarked on a joint armament race to back up the allied might of the British fleet and the French army with at least 3000 additional fighting planes within the next 12 months.

With Norman H. Davis, the United States ambassador-at-large, in London, it became apparent any feelers toward disarmament in a hastily rearming Europe would receive a chilly reception.

Italy was represented as definitely opposed to disarmament; Britain was willing to listen; France favored it in principle but reserved comment on possible success of such a move at this time, and Germany was cool. Other nations reflected little enthusiasm.

Nazis Uneasy on Future Spain Aid Plans

Berlin, April 1 (AP)—A feeling of uneasiness was growing among Germans of all walks of life today over the future policy of Chancellor Hitler and Premier Mussolini of Italy in Spain as a result of recent defeats suffered by the Insurgents.

The closest to an intimation of Reichsfuehrer Hitler's plans in the Spanish situation was contained in the terse phrase of a high cabinet official:

"We will never tolerate a Communist government in Spain."

There is circumstantial evidence, however, that Hitler and Premier Mussolini have concluded what amounts to an alliance whereby each is obligated to assist the other in case of war.

If, for instance, France were to make common cause with the Madrid government Hitler would be prepared to help Italy, if Italy became involved in an eventual war as a consequence.

Hitler's course, therefore, if the Insurgent defeats continue, will depend, informed circles believed, on how far Mussolini might go to end those defeats.

There is no doubt that Germany would consider a victory of the Madrid government an affront to civilization.

England, France Join Air Armament Drive

London, April 1 (AP) — Great Britain and France embarked on a joint armament race today to back up the allied might of the British fleet and the French army with at least 3000 additional fighting planes in the next 12 months.

April 1 is a significant date in the air history of the two democracies whose World War alliance has been strengthened by the fact they are the only two nations in western Europe who have steered a middle course between Communism and Fascism.

By the spring of 1939—when the dual program launched today is completed—the combined airfleets of the two western European powers is expected to total la least 8000 first line planes.

2 Americans Held As War Volunteers

Perpignan, France, April 1 (INS)—Arrested as volunteers for service in Spain's bloody civil war, two Americans and three Frenchmen were taken ot the Palais de Justice at Ceret today for examination.

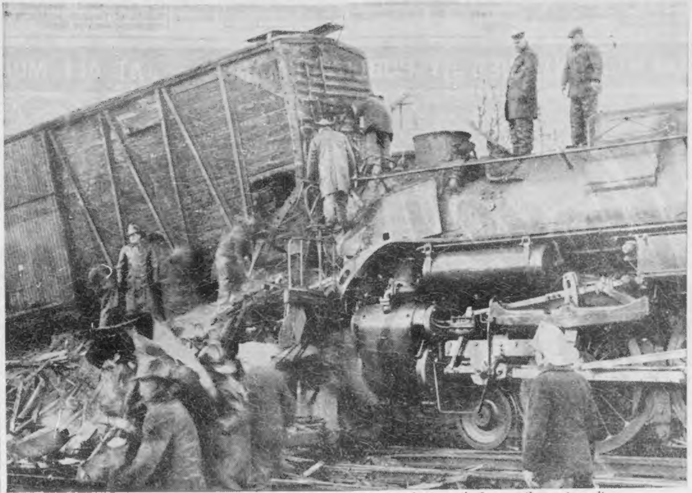
Lynn CCC Member Wins SPCA Medal

Ottie H. Andrews of 817 Boston street, Lynn, member of the 114th Company, Civilian Conservation Corps, was presented with a medal by the Massachusetts Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals today for attempting to rescue a horse from drowning.

The horse, harnessed to a wagon, fell into the harbor from the Army Base dock, South Boston. Andrews dived in and cut away the harness. Police towed the animal ashore but it died of immersion.

Train Crew Cheats Death in Wreck, Fire



How brakemen and engine crew escaped death in this Boston & Maine crash in Somerville is a wonder. With a caboose smashed to bits and pushed under the right end of the box car, you get some idea of the power of the impact. Two brakemen on the caboose leaped to safety. Fire spread from overturned stove in caboose to the box car that rests on it.

2 SAVE LIVES BY LEAP IN FREIGHT CRASH

Two Boston & Maine Railroad trainmen narrowly escaped death today in Somerville when the locomotive of one freight car telescoped the caboose of another and jammed it into the box car ahead.

A stove in the wrecked caboose was overturned, starting a blaze which spread to the merchandise-loaded freight car and resulting in two alarms being sounded, bringing considerable apparatus to the Somerville junction yards.

A freight from Springfield was standing in the yards, waiting to be switched over to "The Hump" when a freight from Worcester rounded the bend and crashed into the standing train.

Just before the crash, R. E. Perkins, flagman of the Springfield freight, shouted a warning to the conductor, W. R. Braney, who was in the caboose. Braney leaped and both men fled a split second before the crash.

Engineer Patrick J. Ryan of the Worcester freight was unhurt in the collision.

The burning caboose and box car were uncoupled from the rest of the train, which pulled away. Damage from the collision and fire was set at $2500 by Boston & Maine officials, who said an investigation would be made.

End Betrothal Of Queen's Niece

London, April 1 (AP)—It was announced today the engagement between the Hon. Cecilia Bowes-Lyon, daughter of Lord Glamis and niece of Queen Elizabeth, and Kenneth DeH. Harington, son of the late Judge Edward Harington, has been broken. The engagement was announced in July, 1933.

Chinese Wipe Out Colony of Lepers

Shanghai, April 1 (AP)—Reports received today from American missionaries at Yeunckong, Kwantung, caused fears the provincial military forces had executed 80 members of the familiar leper colony there in their efforts to wipe out the disease.

MURPHY SILENT ON REMOVAL

Howard Haines Murphy, deposed commissioner of agriculture, made a short visit to his former office at the State House today, and then left for a consultation with his counsel, former State Auditor Francis X. Hurley.

Murphy declined to comment on his dismissal, or to discuss whether action will be taken in court.

William Casey of Spencer, member of the advisory board of the department of agriculture and head of the division of dairying and animal husbandry, will be named by Governor Hurley, it is indicated, to take temporary charge of the department.

Hawks Tests New Plane Tomorrow

East Hartford, Ct., April 1 (INS)—Frank Hawks, famous speed flier, today announced that he definitely would fly his new speed plane to New York and then to Washington tomorrow. Although the pilot would not say whether he would try to lower any speed records, attendants at Rentschler field intimated that Hawks might seek a record.

Delay Naming New Firemen to July

Fire department members, hoping for April 1 promotion, learned today that they'll have to be patient, at least until Fire Commissioner Edward F. McLaughlin comes back from Florida, several weeks from now.

They may have to wait, they were told, until July 1, when 75 new men are to be taken on.

U. S. Senator Hitchcock
says: "Luckies please both my taste and my throat"

"For close to fifty years I have been a regular smoker, so I think I know what constitutes a good cigarette. Luckies please me on two scores. I like their fine flavor. But even more important is the fact that they are a light smoke, easy on my throat. At any rate, it's results that count, and a light smoke pleases both my taste and my throat."

Herbert E Hitchcock

HON. HERBERT E. HITCHCOCK
U. S. SENATOR FROM SOUTH DAKOTA

In a recent independent survey, an overwhelming majority of lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc., who said they smoked cigarettes, expressed their personal preference for a light smoke.

Senator Hitchcock's statement verifies the wisdom of this preference and so do leading artists of radio, stage, screen and opera, whose voices are their fortunes, and who choose Luckies, a light smoke. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the exclusive process "It's Toasted". Luckies are gentle on your throat.

CURLEY CRITICS FLAY $60,758 EXPENDITURE

The legislative committee on ways and means today reported that former Governor James M. Curley's expenditures of $60,758 in 1936 from the Governor's contingent fund broke all records, leaving a deficit of $7060.

It will have to be met by a special appropriation in the budget this year of Governor Hurley, the committee indicated.

CRITICS AROUSED

The former Governor in 1935 received a great of criticism from certain members of the committee and hostile interests when he chalked up a top figure of $54,138 for extraordinary expenses. Discovery that he raised the ante to $60,758 in 1936, despite the hubub over the spending record of the previous year, is furnishing material for a fresh outburst of condemnation from the Curley critics when the budget comes up in the Legislature for debate.

$3300 FOR FLOWERS

Items outstanding in Curley's 1936 expenditures are $3,300 for flowers from 33 florists shops, $3,974 for loose leaf binders for press clippings, $2,546 for press clippings, $3,184 for hotel rooms and meals, $2,086 for flags and pennants, $1,056 for airplane service.

Comparative tables showing the cost of maintenance for the former Governor's official S-1 car were also prepared by the ways and means committee as a part of the indictment against Curley. They revealed that $4,744 was spent for this item in 1936, an increase of $1,400 over expenses of the car in 1935.

Stray Leaf of Long Green

Bluffton, Ind., April 1 (AP)—E. J. Hamilton, noticing an odd "leaf" on a tree along the Wabash River, investigated and found a $1 bill. Apparently it had been washed into the tree by the recent flood.

He examined nearby trees closely.

Don't Be Fooled!

AFTER ALL, IT'S ONLY APRIL 1

Don't be a "poisson d'avril" today, if you can help it.

For what 50,000,000 Frenchmen politely call an "April fish" is just a plain April fool, here in Boston.

Nor will you get "Miss Fish" at South Boston 0145, for that's the City Point aquarium.

DON'T CALL ENDICOTT 6570 TO SPEAK TO MR. BAER
ZOO

Fool or fish, you'll be a sucker in any language today, if you kick hats with bricks under 'em, if you try to pick up hot pennies, if you grab for pocketbooks hitched to hidden strings or if you call up any one of a dozen trick numbers left on your telephone pad by your smart-Alec pals.

FIRE
BEWARE 'KIND' FRIEND WHO OFFERS CANDY

So just be on your guard.

Fireman Injured In So. End Blaze

One fireman was injured and three persons were driven to the street when a fire broke out in the store of the Capitol Plate and Window Glass Co., Shawmut avenue, South End, today.

Edward Rooney of Engine 3 suffered cuts from flying glass on both hands.

The blaze was put under control before it spread to three stories of tenements above the store. No one was driven from the apartments. Three employes of the glass company fled to the street.

Cause of the fire was attributed to sparks from a chimney.

COURT UPSETS RECORD RULING

ing the hearings in the case in Superior Court on the two allegations on which the Supreme Court finds Judge Burns wrongly ascribed liability to the directors, but it leaves his assessments to stand on the other two allegations.

On one of the latter, however, the Supreme Court found that Judge Burns, while right in ascribing liability to the directors, was wrong in imputing "bad faith."

FIRST TO HIT DIRECTORS

The Beacon Participations case was the first in which directors were held directly liable for losses suffered by their company by reason of their conduct of its business.

Judge Burns, who was the youngest man ever appointed to a Superior Court judgeship in Massachusets, later resigned to become counsel for the new Federal Securities Exchange Commission. He left the latter position to re-enter private practice but has recently been mentioned for counsel to the new Federal Maritime Commission.

Stalin Demands Death for Foes

Moscow, April 1 (AP)—Joseph Stalin called upon Russia today for "merciless" extermination of all Bolshevist enemies in what was interpreted as a virtual death sentence for hundreds under arrest as counter-revolutionaries.

The demand of the Soviet leader, regarded as an ultimatum to the Communist Party, was made in the Kremlin March 5 before the closing session of a plenum of the central committee of the party and was published today.

Edward Warned on Peak Climbing

St. Wolfgang, Austria, April 1 (AP)—The Duke of Windsor was warned today by veteran Alpinists to refrain from any attempt to climb 9000-foot Dachstein mountain at present because of the danger of avalanches.

Windsor saw one such snowslide yesterday a mile away while driving over the dangerous mountain roads near Hallstadt in the Austrian lake region where he has established temporary residence.

Lupe, Tarzan Stage Friendly Parting

Hollywood, April 1 (US)—After many wild stories and public affrays, Lupe Velez, fiery screen star, and her champion swimmer-Tarzan-hubby, Johnny Weissmuller, have again separated—this time probably for good, it was learned last night. She says:

"Johnny and I have agreed to a friendly separation which may or may not be permanent. I am not suing for divorce and neither is he, at least for the present."

Planes Crash, 2 Dead

Poznan, Poland, April 1 (AP)—Two military pilots plunged to death today when two single-seated pursuit planes collided during trial flights.

Little Red Schoolhouse

New York, April 1 (AP)—The biggest city in the nation sports a typically rural, one-room school, surrounded by farms. The teacher, Miss Lillian Boeddinghaus, has 18 pupils.

Constructed in 1821, the school is in the community of New Springville, Staten Island, which comprises Richmond, one of New York's five boroughs.

Boardman-Dixon Ceremony Set for Saturday, May 22

By BETTY ALDEN

WE REMARKED the other day upon the unusual number of weddings scheduled for May . . . almost as many as for the month of brides . . . and evidently this situation is true of the New York wedding calendar for we have heard of a number of Mayfair brides who are marching down the middle aisle in May instead of June . . .

VIVIAN DIXON

Vivian Dixon, whose engagement to Dennie Boardman, 2d, of Boston, was announced early in March, has decided to become Mrs. "Dennie" on Saturday, May 22 . . .

This will be the second wedding in the Boardman family within a week, for Dennie's first cousin, Jack Goodrich, will be married to Priscilla Dennett here in Boston the preceding week . . . Jack's mother was a Boardman, sister of Reginald Boardman who is Dennie's dad . . .

Dennie and Jack are both in the real estate business on Beacon Hill the title of which sounds like a closed corporation of Boardmans, and since they can't both be away at the same time, Dennie and Vivian are postponing their honeymoon until after Jack and Priscilla come back from their wedding trip and settle down on the North Shore for the summer . . .

Dennie and Vivian will be married in the little Church of St. John's at Lattingtown, L. I., and will greet their friends at a large reception at the estate in Glen Cove which the bride's parents have leased for the summer . . .

The bride-to-be is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Dixon of New York and Palm Beach . . . and since she has a penchant for blue, it is rumored that her wedding will be an "all-blue" affair . . . with attendants in fluffy blue frocks and all the decorations carried out in the same hue . . .

Dennie's Boston friends who happened to see the Easter parade pictures in Monday's New York papers, are kidding him about the picture of his fiancee and her brother leaving a fashionable New York church after Easter services . . . and which the photographers mistook for Vivian and Dennie, captioning it "A Future Bridal Couple" . . .

Vivian studied abroad for several years before making her debut in New York in the season of 1935-36 . . . and is a great-granddaughter of the late Courtlandt Palmer Dixon, and granddaughter of the late Dr. George A. Dixon, personal physician to the late J. P. Morgan and the late William Vanderbilt . . .

Her uncle, Jessie I. Strauss was formerly United States ambassador to France . . .

Dennie's mother is Mrs. Lawrence Waterbury of Syosset, L. I., and Palm Beach . . . He prepared for college at St. Mark's and graduated from Harvard in 1936 . . . His brother Reginald, Jr., is a junior at Harvard . . .

Doormen to the Rescue

AN INTERESTING SIDELIGHT on the Hasty Pudding show Tuesday night was provided for Shippen Goodhue and other ticket takers at the door, when Kermit Roosevelt, Jr., and Polly Gaddis arrived and it was discovered that Kermit had bought tickets for Wednesday night instead of Tuesday . . .

Unlike most hard boiled theatrical doormen, however, Shippen and his crew of assistants, thought it was excusable for a fellow Puddinger to mistake the tiny lettering "Mar. 31" to read "Mar. 30" in the excitement of stepping out with his future bride . . .

Before they arrived the S. R. O. sign had been hung out, but Shippen did a bit of last minute scurrying around to find a couple of chairs so Kermit and Polly wouldn't have to miss the first public performance of the show . . .

Another amusing little sidelight is that Ben Welles, Nat Benchley and Arnett McKennan, all of whom are in the Pudding show, and their director, Billy Holbrook, took a sailors' holiday yesterday afternoon and went to a musical revue in town to see how other actors and actresses sing and dance . . .

After a visit backstage with Dwight Deere Wiman, the producer, who was a prominent member of the Yale Workshop during his collegiate days, the boys just got back to the Pudding house in the nick of time to get on their wigs and grease paint for last evening's performance of "Come Across" . . . The show comes in town tonight for a two-night stand at the Copley Theater . . . after which the cast goes on tour to Washington, Hot Springs, Philadelphia and New York . . .

Speaking of Theatricals:

Evidently the days and nights spent inside the whale in their winter production of "Jonah and the Whale," were enough for members of the Harvard Dramatic Club . . . for now they are getting ready to produce a frolicsome musical show with lots of singing and dancing, a cast of about one hundred, and a script which calls for three acts and fourteen changes of scenery . . . The production will be the American premiere of "The Dog Beneath the Skin," by W. H. Auden and Christopher Asherwood, distinguished young English poets . . . it will be presented on May 6, 7 and 8, at a theater yet to be determined . . .

Girls who are members of the Dramatic Clubs at either Radcliffe of Erskine are being tried out for the feminine leads and among these attractive young Thespians, many of whom were in Jonah and the Whale, are Lois Greene, Polly Long, Amy Lang, Helen Lang, Desiree Rogers, Alloe Plimpton, Freddie Sargent, Margery Weld and Peggy Eastall, president of the Erskine School Dramatic Club . . .

Notes scribbled on a fashion sheet picked up on a shopping tour . . . Rue French Megrew having tea at the Ritz with Mrs. George Bemis, who was president of the Junior League during Rue's regime as executive secretary . . . Rue is married to a school teacher now, and they are here from Appleton, Wisconsin, for his spring vacation . . . Alden is a Bostonian, too, brother of Jane Megrew, an active Junior Leaguer . . .

Mrs. Richard Thorndike of Millis tries on buttercup yellow blouses to find just the right one to contrast with her turquoise blue tweed cape suit . . . the suit makes her as bright and gay as the crocus beds along the avenue . . .

SHOW STAR Talks Shop After Performance

"WE'RE SISTERS under the skin," said Johnnie Graham, president of this year's Hasty Pudding Club show, who plays the part of May Laverne, a worldly wise show girl, as he discussed the production with Nancy Cassels. Miss Cassels, who is the post-debutante daughter of Mrs. J. Donald Cassels of Beacon street and Manchester, gave a large party for the Hasty Pudding boys and their girl friends when the show first went into rehearsal a few weeks ago.

Blazing Plaids, Stripes Top Mode

This, at least, is the Fashion Congress' view of the mode, and yesterday in the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, it let Boston know all about it at a unique post-Easter parade.

Stripes were all over the sartorial picture—on simple little crepe frocks, on chic town suits, even on the new full-length dressmaker coats over which fashion is all agog this season.

Mrs. James J. Phelan of Brookline, smart socialite, headed the committee of style judges. Seated at the horseshoe-shaped luncheon table were the following "jurors":

Mrs. Benjamin Prouty, Miss Martha Chapin, Miss Virginia Phelan, Mrs. Wallace L. Pierce, Mrs. Clifford Fuller, Mrs. J. E. O'Connell, Mrs. William Hotchkins, Mrs. Frank Fay, Mrs. Howard Lahey, Mrs. Albert Brook and Miss Priscilla Phelan.

In different spirit, but as dramatic and intriguing as the new Romany trend, were costumes in 1900 bengalines, mousselines and gay floral prints.

Presented with an eye to the present festive mood in fashion, many of these boasted huge corsages of field flowers and daisies. Others had wisps of lace and little frills, recalling romantic fashions of a quarter of a century ago.

Mannequins who participated in the fashion show were Miss Joan Jacoby, Miss Dorothy Wright, Miss Louise Raney and Miss Dorothy Dillon.

Fashion Congress Approves Summery Frock

Catholic Clubs in Convention

College Groups Meet Friday

COLLEGIANS WILL POSSESS the town this week-end when representatives from various colleges in eastern United States gather at the annual week-end convention of the Federation of College Catholic Clubs.

And what a gay week-end it's going to be. Balls, tea dance and informal get-togethers are taking precedence over more serious business. A ball tomorrow evening in the roof ballroom of the Parker House opens the whirl for visiting delegates. Oliver Judge of Boston University is arranging the affair, assisted by a corps of students from other colleges, John Canavan of Tufts College, Betty Reardon and Leonora Bixby of Simmons and Thomas Furlong.

More serious things will be discussed at business meetings Saturday morning, after which the students and visiting delegates gather for tea and a few dances at the Fox and Hounds. Sunday morning, everyone has a date to attend the communion breakfast at the Copley-Plaza, planned by John McDonough of Boston University law school.

Barbara O'Hagan of Simmons College has compiled the patron list for the week-end affairs. Among them are Mrs. Frederick W. Mansfield, Senator David I. Walsh, Dean William F. Linnehan of Boston Teachers' College, Matthew Copithorne of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Mrs. Francis E. Slattery, Dr. Roger T. Doyle, J. D. M. Ford, Mr. and Mrs. H. P. McCarthy, Mrs John Moran, Mrs John O'Hagan and Mrs. Paul Cifrino.

Others include Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Welch, Mrs. Hugh McGuire, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Kiley, Bessie Page and Joseph Kenneally.

Receiving of visiting delegates is in charge of Edward Corea of Boston University, who is assisted by Sue Dawson of Wellesley, Jule Rigo of Simmons, Katherine Fitzgibbons of Portia Law School, Francis Obert of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Representatives of other schools who will welcome all delegates are Joan Blakeley of Tufts College, Blandid Queeney of Framingham Teacher's College, Fleudelis Peluso of Boston University, Lucille Cavanaugh of Bridgewater, Gertrude Scully of Smith College and Elsie Nolan of the Alumni Club.

Roxbury Notre Dame Folk to Dance

A roving troubadour, singing romantic ballads, will wander through the candle-lighted ballroom of the Hotel Somerset at the spring supper soiree of the Roxbury Academy of Notre Dame tomorrow evening. Other delightful ideas in the entertainment field have been planned by Mrs. Felix Forte and her committee of assistants.

Mrs. Melvin Dolan, chairman of reservation, is bringing a group of people to the dance. Other hostesses will be Mrs. William H. Ellis, Mrs. William Gaddis, Mrs. Martin Caulfield, Mrs. Joseph Supple, Ellen Buckley, Gertrude Curry, Catherine Ford, Rose Fitzgibbons, Virginia Hoy and Dorothy Dever.

Other grads of the school who gather tomorrow night for an evening of dining and dancing are Ruth York, Helene and Elinor Crosby, Dorothea Forrest, Gertrude Mudock, Mrs. Henry Foley, Amy Shields, Mary Kennedy, Mrs. Oliver Sughrue and Francis McCarthy.

Flower Mart Plans Made

Mrs. Harold G. Cutler, chairman of the committee in charge of the Flower Mart, which will be held in Horticultural Hall on April 23 and 24 for the benefit of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, has received entries from many cities and towns in eastern Massachusetts where garden-lovers are organizing community booths.

Booths are also being organized by a number of collaborating social agencies, including the North Bennett Street Industrial School with George Greener as chairman; the Women's Educational and Industrial Union, Mrs. W. Stuart Forbes, chairman; and the Dartmouth Bookshop, Mrs. Joseph R. Hamlen, chairman.

Included among the various community groups planning booths are Mrs. Edwin S. Webster of Boston, assisted by Mrs. John A. Cunningham, Mrs. William K. Jackson and Mrs. Irving C. Wright; Dr. C. Boardman Burnham is chairman of the committee in Beverly; Mrs. Ronald T. Lyman, chairman of Waltham and Mrs. Wilfred G. Funnell is chairman of Quincy., assisted by Mrs. Boyd F. Bowles, Mrs. William J. Holbrook, Mrs. F. Morton Smith, Mrs. Robert M. Prouty, Mrs. Joseph W. Powell, Mrs. Henry Marden, Mrs. Robert S. Wallace and Mrs. Earl P. Sinclair.

Freehold, N. J., April 1 (AP)—Harvard University was named today to receive the estate of Mrs. Sophia E. Williston of Rumson after the marriage or death of her daughter, Annie Louise.

Under Mrs. Williston's will, probated at the surrogate's office, Miss Williston will receive at least $20,000 a year for life. Papers filed with the will gave the value of the estate as "over $100,000." After the daughter's marriage or death, the principal will go to Harvard business school as a permanent foundation in memory of Mrs. Williston's husband, the late James Richards Williston.

The will was executed August 7, 1931, and named William Nelson Cromwell and the Bank of New York and Trust Company as executors and trustees. Mrs. Williston died March 18.

In today's classified columns you will find a choice selection of desirable rooms that will meet all your requirements as to price, description, and location.

Braved Death to Save Pals

TOM HANSON TONY LaCIVITA

Heroes of a $3000 fire in the South Boston manufacturing plant where they worked were Tony LaCivita and Tom Hanson today. In a freight elevator they rode up three flights as flames swept through the structure, sending fellow workers to safety. Then power lines were cut, the two were rescued themselves, by firemen.

'Doug' Sells 'Rights'

GIVES UP MARCO POLO FILM

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor, Universal Service

Hollywood, April 1 (US)—The sale of Douglas Fairbanks' rights in his long cherished "Marco Polo" to Samuel Goldwyn has come as a surprising bit of news.

Douglas has had the idea of making the life of this intrepid adventurer for many years, and only a few months ago announcement was made that he and Goldwyn would jointly produce his screen play with Gary Cooper in the leading role.

Previous to that time, Doug had expected to play the title role himself, and had spent several years gathering data for the story.

On the heels of these disclosures came rumors that although Fairbanks signed a ten-year contract with United Artists he would make a picture with Darryl Zanuk for Twentieth Century-Fox.

When pressed for a reason for his withdrawal from the Marco Polo picture, after Robert Sherwood's scenario had been approved, Fairbanks said that "Marco Polo" would not go into production until July and he was eager to get to work immediately.

Soviet Ex-Envoy Seized as Plotter

London, April 1 (INS)—Christian Rakovsky, Soviet ambassador to Britain in the years 1923-1935, has been arrested in Moscow on charges of complicity in a Trotskyist plot against the Stalin regime, the London Daily Mail reported today in a dispatch from Riga, Latvia.

Lindberghs Land At Athens Airport

Athens, April 1 (US)—Returning from their aerial tour of the Near East and India, Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh landed at Tatoi airport here and were warmly greeted by huge throngs. They arrived from the island of Rhodes.

4 MORE DEATHS ADDED TO AUTO TOLL

Automobile accidents claimed four new victims today.

Three other persons, seriously injured, lie in hospitals.

An eight-year-old girl, Sally Curtis, died in Weyouth oHspital today of a fracture dskull, received yesterday when she was struck by an automobile while crossing the street in front of her home in West Hanover.

Jared A. Gardner, of Pine street, Norwell, driver of the car, said he didn't see the little girl in time to stop.

DRIVER KILLED, GIRL HURT

Edward Kelly, 24, of Chickatawbut street, Neponset, was killed instantly as the car in which he was riding overturned on the outskirts of Pembroke.

In critical condition at Weymouth Hospital as a result of the same accident is Mary Lillian Dow, 20, of East Fifth street, East Boston.

Alleged driver of the car, Francis Taprozny, 21, of Dorchester street, Dorchester, was arrested later in Duxbury, pailce said.

WOMAN DEAD, SISTER DYING

His companion, Walter Pickett, 26, of Lewis street, Somerville, was seriously injured. The two were struck by a car driven by Charles Riley of Denver street, Saugus.

Victim of an automobile accident Sunday night, Miss Beatrice Whalen, 68, died today in a Springfield hospital.

Her sister, who was struck at the same time, remained on the danger list at the hospital. The sisters were struck by a car driven by Aime Vallee of Holyoke as they were crossing the street, police said.

Mother Saves 3 Children in Fire; Life in Danger

A courageous mother was in a serious condition in the J. B. Thomas Hospital, Peabody, today after a stairway collapsed beneath her as she carried one of her three children from their blazing tenement house at 26 Main street, Peabody.

The mother, Mrs. Dorothy Armstrong, suffered a possible skull fracture, contusions and a broken arm.

When flames swept the building she hastily took two of her children, John, 7, and Beverly, 5, from the second floor to safety down the back stairs. Then she went back for Dolores, one year, sleeping in her crib.

When she started down the stairs they collapsed, hurling her seven feet to the first floor. The baby was uninjured.

Ask U. S. to Probe Fr. Divine Cult

DELIGHT JEWETT

New York, April 1 (INS)—Sweeping investigations by both the government and the state of Father Divine's cult were demanded today following the Evening Journal's publication of the tragic experience of 17-year-old Delight Jewett.

David Garrison Berger, the attorney who represents the Denver schoolgirl and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Jewett, sent telegrams to United States Attorney-General Homer S. Cummings and Attorney-General John J. Bennett, urging inquiries in the interest of "public morals and public welfare."

Miss Jewett has made Mann Act charges against John W. Hunt, wealthy white follower of Father Divine.

Father Divine, located in his "promised land" at Kingston, N. Y., denied knowledge of the case.

"Did you know that this situation existed," Father Divine was asked.

"I objected that she was alone with him," he replied. "I do not believe in persons of the opposite sex sitting side by side in the same automobile seat."

"Is Hunt still a member of your flock?"

"I have no flock. Fortunately, I have a following."

"Did you know that this relationship existed between Hunt and Delight Jewett?"

"No, I did not," said Father Divine.

The Jewett girl and her parents all claim that the entire situation was discussed with Father Divine, both at the "promised land" and in his Harlem "kingdom."

Los Angeles, April 1 (INS)—Predicting a "nation-wide scandal" as a result of the charges against a follower of Father Divine, United States Attorney Peirson Hall today took personal charge of the Western search for John W. Hunt, wanted on Mann Act charges.

Hunt, formerly of Cleveland, and later a Los Angeles advertising man, is one of the white lieutenants of the Negro, Father Divine, "God" to his followers.

In a federal complaint issued here, Hunt, 33, is charged with transporting pretty Delight Jewett, 17, from Father Divine's mission in Denver, Col., to Hunt's fashionable home in Beverly Hills, Cal.

The couple came West in a car driven by a liveried chauffeur, stopping at many swank hotels together where they registered under ethereal names, according to charges.

Both Hunt and Miss Jewett are white, but investigators here stated that Father Divine numbered many followers among both races.

While search for the missing lieutenant was being pressed throughout the country, Attorney Hall announced he was preparing to take the whole matter before the federal grand jury

36 GOVERNORS TO OBSERVE ARMY DAY

Washington, April 1 (US)—Thirty-six governors have responded to President Roosevelt's proclamation for national observance on Tuesday next of Army Day, 20th anniversary of America's entry into the World War.

Their responses, plus a presidential order to federal military units for full co-operation with civic bodies in appropriate ceremonies, promises an observance eclipsing any since the anniversary was first observed in 1927.

The President, in a letter to Rear Admiral R. R. Belknap, commander-in-chief, lauded the order's sponsorship of the occasion.

"The nation has formed the habit of looking to the army for protection in emergencies of peace as well as in time of war."

He and cabinet members will review the monster Army Day parade to mark the capital's observance. Contingents from the regular army, the navy, marine corps, National Guard, organized reserves, reserve officers and cadet corps will be swelled by delegations from veterans' organizations

Parades, military drills, air shows and banquets will likewise be staged in New York, Chicago, Atlanta, Milwaukee, Omaha, Seattle, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Boston and other cities, Major Edwin S. Bettelheim, Jr., adjutant-general of the order, announced.

Secretary of War Woodring, commending these ceremonies in a message to Major Bettelheim, declared though the country's relations with others are on a friendly basis, "we cannot fail to note the many factors that threaten world peace."

"Under the circumstances, prudence indicates that we keep our defenses intact. Our army and our navy are maintained solely for defense—never for aggression. They are to preserve peace, not to wage war."

Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, expressed the navy's cordial wishes for a successful observance, pointing out:

"The army and the navy have a common mission with identical aspirations—national defense and the protection of American interests at home and abroad."

1937 Me. Fishing Season Under Way

Augusta, Me., April 1 (AP)—Maine's fishing season opened today.

Large groups of anglers, including many from out of the state, tried their luck at Sebago lake, one of the largest lakes in Maine, and the Bangor salmon pool, which by special law are opened April 1 each year.

Her Rival Always Near

Wife Couldn't Go Out Without Seeing "Sal"

Salem, April 1—When her husband took her to the wrestling bouts, he also bought another ticket close by for a woman named "Sal" so he could see her, Mrs. Sarah B. Murray, 42, of Salisbury, testified in probate court here today.

She is seeking a contested divorce from her husband, William T. R. Murray of Salisbury on grounds of cruel and abusive treatment. Mrs. Murray also seeks custody of their five-year-old son, William, Jr.

Mrs. Murray, who was married when she was 17, testified that all their troubles were "due to a Salisbury girl named Sal."

ALWAYS SAW "SAL"

She said that she discovered her husband was going out with "Sal" after 1930 and when she went out with him she always saw "Sal" nearby.

"I wasn't going out everywhere just to sit and look at that other woman," she testified.

When she spoke to her husband about going out with other women, Mrs. Murray told the court, he struck her, threatened to kill her, sulked and then wouldn't speak to her for a week or more.

She quoted him as saying:

"I'm going with other women and do as I please. You have the same privilege."

TWISTED HER NOSE

She said he once twisted her nose, necessitating an operation, and on another occasion stepped on her feet.

In 1935, she testified, her husband pushed her out of bed and, when she got a cot, he took that away. She went to sleep on the divan, she continued, but he kicked her off and, when she went out on the porch, he wouldn't let her sleep there, either.

Finally, when she started to sleep on the floor, he took her blankets away. They were separated in October 27, 1936, she testified.

Girl Balks at Kin's $60,000 Will Terms

Troy, N. Y., April 1 (AP)—Vera Jean Howard, brown-haired girl of 15, heiress to $60,000 on condition that she remain away from her parents, hesitated today to accept the money.

"I'd rather have Uncle Fred," said the Hoosick Falls high school student.

"Uncle Fred" is her grand-uncle and foster-father, Fred D. Nichols, thrifty Petersburg storekeeper, whose will establishes a $60,000 trust fund for her providing she does not live with her relatives.

I'll Marry Tomorrow

By Louise Jerrold

CHAPTER 33

Once she tiptoed into the room across the hall. Her mother had eaten an inordinately heavy dinner that evening. Dr. Abbott, of late, sternly forbade that.

A hand under her cheek, Mrs. Lyle lay quietly sleeping, snugly covered to the chin. Paula bent over to listen to the breathing. Her mother was sleeping well as she had promised.

Paula crept back into bed. Gradually the storm lessened. The night grew bitter chill. Outside strange, unnameable noises. Within, queer crackings in the old woodwork.

Toward dawn she fell asleep. She awoke with a start. Broad daylight. Brilliant sunlight in patches of color on the floor. On a driving impulse she ran straight to a rear window. Her heart stood still. Sprawled on the frozen white ground lay the apple tree.

There bore down upon her suddenly, inexplicably, a sense of terror. Fear numbing her, she tore into her mother's bedroom.

A hand under her cheek, a faint smile on her lips, Mrs. Lyle lay quiet. Very quiet. In the night, "that dark mother, always gliding near with soft feet," had come for her.

Paula sat thinking of the radical difference in her way of living one blustery afternoon. An afternoon unusually unpleasant for May fast merging into June.

In her sitting room, complete even to a small grand piano and her favorite books, she was deftly fashioning chiffon and curled feather trimming into a bed jacket for Lilian.

The Lyle and Stewart households had been merged less than four weeks before, but already the wheels of the domestic machinery ran noiselessly under Paula's efficient direction.

"You'll have that bed-jacket done today," Lilian's voice broke in on Paula's musing.

"I don't know," Paula began doubtfully, checked herself and stared.

Lilian in a gray coat and gray felt hat, fresh violets on her shoulder, a violet leather bag swinging on one arm, was jauntily hauling on driving gloves and trying to look unconcerned.

"Out for a half-hour," the younger girl said airily. "I'll be home long before—"

"You know it rained last night," Paula announced with the patience that covers impatience. "It's muddy again. You can't risk—"

"You driving— You wouldn't be so foolish."

Outwardly calm, with Paula seethed with anger at Lilian's wilfulness and recklessness in driving her car against doctor's orders. Especially in this wet weather.

"I'm going with you."

"Nothing doing." Lilian's voice was as hard as it was young.

In the doorway she turned, swaying on her high heels. "If Day phones, I'm not out."

"I don't lie well," Paula retorted shortly.

"Darn your old conscience. Honestly, sweetness" — Lilian plodded back and kissed her on the cheek..

"I'm not up to any mischief."

Paula sat down to her sewing again and her thoughts. She had done her best. Why fret? Lilian drove well. Before you realized she'd be back—

The whir of the starter. Paula darted over to the window. She'd been unnecessarily cross. She'd wave an apology to—why didn't the car swing around the corner of the house into the driveway? Opening the window she leaned out. The garage was not visible from that angle of the house, but she could hear the steady throbbing of the motor and the almost incessant barking of the old airedale. What was exciting Sandy? He was usually the most silent of dogs.

Lilian was undoubtedly giving orders to Johnson. No, Paula remembered, he had driven the limousine to the factory and was to call for David late in the afternoon. The coupe with Lilian at the wheel would dash by any second now.

But the seconds passed. The coupe did not dash by. Sandy's barking sounded louder, harsher. As though coming nearer and nearer.

Where Is She?

Paula rushed out doors. Sandy leaped upon her with the full force of his powerful body, almost throwing her. He kept up a continuous barking, short, sharp yelps. His tail waved frantically. He would flash ahead a few steps, then back again.

She tried to run to keep up with him, but had to slow down over the ice-coated walk. Slipping, sliding she crept along the driveway through the storm of sleet and rain that froze falling.

She seemed to be stumping forward on wooden feet. Icy fingers of fear froze her heart.

Beeckman ON Good MANNERS

CONGRATULATIONS

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Recently I sent a mother a telegram of congratulations on the baptism of her child. I was told later that I made a bad mistake—that I should have sent the telegram addressed to the mother and father.

The reason I sent it to the mother was—really the telegram should have been sent to the child for being accepted in the Catholic religion, but since the child was too young to understand, I thought the correct way to do it was to address it to the mother. I have since found out that the father took offense.

Please tell me the proper thing to do in a case of that kind.

"STILL IN THE DARK."

You should indeed have sent your telegram of congratulation addressed to both the mother and father. The reason you give applies just as much to the father as to the mother . . . whether or not both are Catholics.

If the father is not a Catholic (I may be reading this incorrectly into your question) then there was all the more reason for your having included him in your telegram . . . sensing that he might have reason for being sensitive about your omission of him.

If you are definitely sure about the father's being offended, I think it would be kind and gracious of you to write him a note of apology, saying that you learn that he was hurt by not being included in your telegram, that your omission had no significance whatever, that you really meant the telegram for both him and his wife, that you deeply regret your social awkwardness, and ask for his forgiveness.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on Good Manners submitted by readers.)

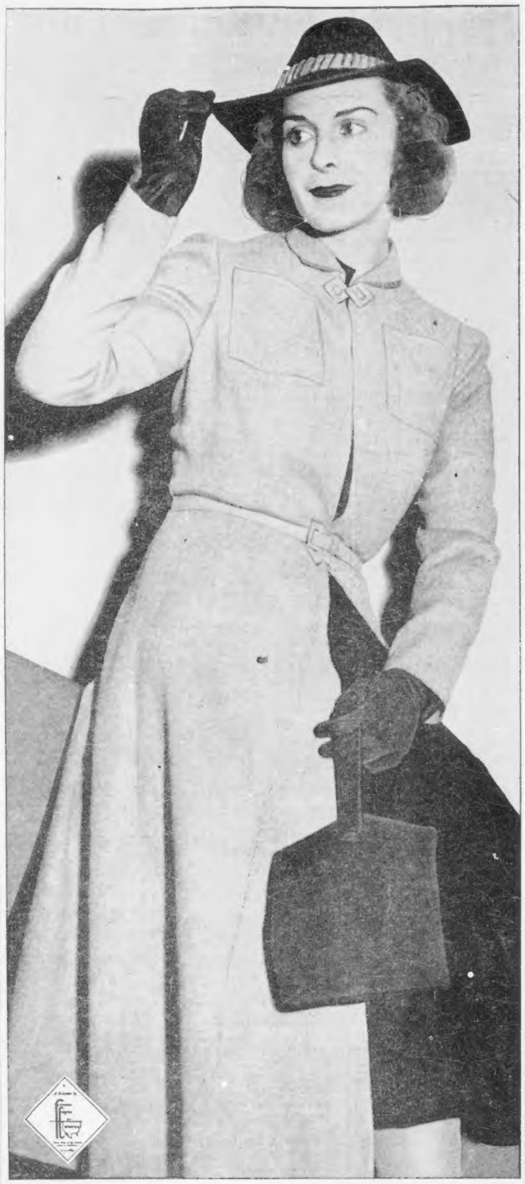
Simplicity Your Star



IN A SEASON where pockets get fantastic beyond words (not that they're not fun, mind you, but there's often apt to be too much of a good thing, and if designers continue at this rate we'll be finding six pockets at a time on a suit or coat, or even eight!) In the calmer waters of high fashion, every now and then you find quite the perfect ensemble which looks as though any little dressmaker could cut it out, but you know she couldn't in a thousand years! It's deceptive in its complete simplicity, and instinctively you know that to get this marvelous effect there's mastery involved. You see exactly what we mean in this Fashion Congress selection modeled by Miss Marian Lawrence. Simpsonian simplicity rules the little collar, the meek clasp, the narrow belt of the slightly flared thistle wool coat. Beneath the coat is a black silk frock that's svelte and beautiful. And crowning the ensemble is a hat which dares a bit . . . and has been called the "Last Puritan!" It has a perfectly square brim and a conical crown banded in thistle to match the coat. For shopping information on this Fashion Congress selection, phone Annice Brink, Fashion Editor, LIBerty 4000, or write her at the Boston Evening American.

Saving Declarer From a Guess

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Ignorance may be bliss but it is apt to be very expensive, at least at the Bridge table.

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	2 ◇	Pass
2 ♡	Pass	2 N T	Pass
3 ♡	Pass	3 N T	Pass
4 ♡	Pass	Pass	Pass

North's two diamond bid is worthy of comment. The hand is much too strong for the non-committal notrump response and slightly too weak for two notrump. North's bidding was perfect; South's was questionable. His two and three heart rebids were correct, but over three notrump, despite his singleton, he should have passed.

West opened the nine of clubs; dummy ducked, and East won with the King. East, afraid that declarer might find means of discarding losing diamonds, laid down the Ace and, when West signalled high, followed with a second round. Declarer ruffed, and led a spade to dummy's Queen, then returned a heart and put up his own King. West grabbed the trick, and led his remaining club. Dummy's Ace won, and now declarer, faced with the necessity of taking the rest of the tricks, finessed against the heart Jack successfully. After that he laid the hand down.

I am quite sure that neither East nor West had the slightest idea that the declarer's problem had been resolved for him. The crucial play was West's acceptance of the heart King. West should have seen that the only hope for the setting trick lay in the heart suit itself. Declarer's action in entering dummy for a trump lead up to his own hand was strong indication that his suit was far from solid and indeed, from the bidding. West should have visualized just such a trump suit as declarer actually held.

Had he done so and used his imagination further, he would have played the nine of hearts very promptly under declarer's King. Put yourself, dear reader, in the declarer's place and note the dilemma in which this would place you.

KEEP BULGES AWAY WITH EXERCISE

By IDA JEAN KAIN

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

IF you have ever had a disproportionate measurement, let it be a lesson to you! In keeping the smooth, slim lines of your re-contoured figure, you'll have to go on exercising. That capricious waist or hip line will always need curbing.

It's true saying that you "either rust out or wear out," and in this age of physical inactivity only a carefully planned program of exercise will keep your muscles toned and strong.

In the day's routine your most important muscles—those of the trunk and hips — get the least use. For this reason the parts of your figure where symmetry demands slimness are likely to be the most susceptible to fatty deposit.

There isn't any choice. You either exercise or you lose your figure. In your daily dozen, always take a few extra kicks or stretches to wake up the muscles underneath your bygone bulges. Although some of your most powerful muscles are networked through the trunk, it takes a daily stint of exercise to hold the figure to slim, tapering lines.

As to the hips—if you sit down on the job the excess inches will start collecting again. You know that it is no light task to control this measurement. Even though your measurements are perfect you must continue to kick, swing the legs or roll for a smooth hipline—if you expect to keep it.

Unless you are a professional dancer or a regular participant in such active games as tennis, handball, badminton or basketball, you are unlikely to get anything approaching adequate exercise. Tennis, a superb figure-building sport, is too strenuous for most of us.

Swimming furnishes splendid exercise for all the muscles, but is usually limited to a weekly dip. When you consider that the country's leading golfers rely on specific exercise to keep the old waistline down to par, you appreciate the need of more exercise than your sports hobby affords.

Supplement your hiking, bicycling or swimming with something special in the way of a daily workout—such as the exercises contained in the illustrated leaflet, *"Spot Exercises for Symmetry."

While the major figure trouble is with the two central measurements, there are minor threats which canont be ignored. Once you have smoothed out a dowager's hump and regained that straight, youthful look about the nape of the neck, you should need no warning to keep your chin up. And don't fool yourself that your arms will retain their smooth roundness without your help!

You will have to be both determined and consistent if you are to stay slim and supple. A little daily exercise, however, will keep you in perfect shape and at normal weight.

The leaflets "Spot Exercise for Symmetry," and "Abdominal Exercises" will help you to discipline your troublesome measurements. Write for these leaflets, enclosing a large stamped, addressed envelope with your request to Miss Kain in care of the Boston Evening American.

Shirring Is 'Pretty' Fashion

SHIRRING comes to us from the nostalgic past as one of the prettiest of the new "pretty" fashions. Black chiffon is finely shirred on black velvet bands in an afternoon frock of delicate charm. Its intense blackness is relieved by rhinestone bows caught on the sleeves, by a cap of bluets and by royal blue pumps with mule strap fastenings. Shirring is imaginatively handled in a navy blue sheer frock—a wide panel of it traced from throat to hem.

MARY PROMISES TO "BE GOOD" AND GOES TO OTHER CABIN

CHAPTER 265

MARY is as royal in her repentance as she is tumultuous in her temperament.

As soon as she told me that she would "be good," and do whatever I asked her to do, she came over to me, and said sweetly and reasonably:

"If I'm not to go back in Noel's room, there's no use in staying around here, is there? What say I go on over to the other camp and see what the kids are up to? They've had time to think out nineteen and a half varieties of deviltry by this time."

"I think you misjudge them this time, Mary," I said smiling. "They really are on their best behavior tonight."

MADGE PROMISES

"Mebbe so, mebbe so," she said with a doubtful intonation. "But I'll keep my eyes wide open just the same. I'll be seeing you!"

She threw up one hand in a valiant attempt to appear nonchalant and then, with a sudden abandoning of defenses, she made a little rush for me.

"Promise me!" she whispered vehemently, "that you'll let me know if Noel wakens and asks for me. I'm willing to stay away otherwise, but if my boy asks for me I'm going to him if I have to knock twenty doctors for a goal. You'll promise me, won't you?"

"Yes, I promise," I told her, for there was nothing else I could do in the face of her stressful emotion. But I told myself that it was extremely unlikely Noel would awaken until after Mary and I should have gone to bed.

Katherine, evidently elected to take care of Noel, would be under no restraint of a promise unless Mary should get the idea of exacting one from her. It was in the hope of forestalling such a notion that I added an injunction to my promise.

"If you're sure you don't mind going over to the other cabin to look after the boys," I said, "I wish you would tell them that they cannot go to bed until I find out where they are going to sleep. You see, originally they were to sleep in this cabin, but—"

TAKES THE BLAME

"I know," Mary said remorsefully, "this accident of Noel's has knocked your plans galley-west, or whatever direction a perfectly good galley is supposed to be. And it was all my fault, too.

"I was supposed to look out for rocks, but I got so absorbed in listening to Noel's spiel about this latest stunt his old man is pulling that I didn't see anything but his face until we hit that rock. Poor boy! he certainly is in a wax over this yacht thing. But I forgot! You don't know anything about this latest performance, do you?"

"Only that Mr. Veritzen has rented a large yacht and wishes Noel to accompany him on a cruise," I said.

"Then you don't know the tenth of it," she retorted, her voice rising above the low monotone in which we had couched our speech.

DOCTOR PERTURBED

I put up my hand warningly.

"You'll have the doctor and nurses out here demanding your scalp," I told her in a whisper, and with a startled look in her eyes, she hurried to the door.

"I'll tell you all about it when you come over," she whispered, and was gone upon the last word.

I gave a lusty sigh of relief, for one never can predict what Mary will do next, and I was glad to get her away without her making any more requests concerning Noel.

Dangers of Digestive Upsets

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

OF all the forms that dread disease can take, cancer of the stomach is the slowest to be recognized.

The victim has a dozen explanations for his symptoms. On this account the true nature of the trouble is often overlooked.

In all forms of cancer, early attention is of vital importance. Contrary to a common belief, many cases of cancer are curable. But cure is possible only if it is recognized and attended to in its early stages.

Many a person suffers from indigestion, heartburn, pain in the abdomen and disturbances of elimination. The symptoms come and go and the sufferer is likely to regard his ailment as a trivial and passing upset.

As a matter of fact, the symptoms may indicate a change in the cells making up the walls of the stomach, pointing to cancer of that organ.

PUBLIC INNOCENT

I wonder if you agree with me that the general public does not possess enough accurate knowledge of the human body. Because of their innocence, many persons avoid seeking medical advice about vital health problems.

There are those who do not wish to bother the doctor and, on this account neglect to see him. Then there are others who avoid consulting with the doctor out of pure fear.

They are afraid of being told they have tuberculosis, cancer or some other affliction generally regarded as incurable.

Woman's Club To Hold Lunch

A double program, including a fashion show and bridge, will feature the luncheon at the Parkway Women's Club of Roslindale and West Roxbury, Saturday afternoon at Filene's store.

The committees for tickets, prizes and reception include: Mrs. Isabel Wall, Mrs. John Kilduff, Mrs. Thomas Tobin, Mrs. Edward O'Rourke, Mrs. Frederick Harris, Mrs. Frances Hurley, Mrs. James Mulvey, Mrs. Joseph McGlynn, Mrs. Robert Doyle, Miss Mary Murphy, Cecelia Kelley, Mrs. George McGowan, Mrs. Charles Atkinson, Mrs. John Hines and Mrs. Arthur Wood.

ADVICE on MARRIAGE -:- By Beatrice Fairfax

Achievement of Beauty A General Interest Among Women

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Since long before Marlowe wrote his matchless description of Helen of Troy's beauty, "Is that the face that launched a thousand ships and burnt the topmost towers of Ilium?" how to be beautiful has been woman's chief concern.

Believe it or not, a woman may have taken a Ph.D, written a best seller and had a picture accepted in the Paris Salon but she is never indifferent to her appearance until the undertaker arrives to do his bit.

At a recent dinner given by the Woman's National Press Club, a lady who revamps faces stole the show. Six hundred women, straight from Who's Who and the headlines, gathered to do honor to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt — ambassadors' wives, Supreme Court judges' wives and women whose achievements had made first pages.

The president of the club, Miss Mary Hornaday, introduced these top-notchers and asked them to take a bow. [illegible], the lady pen-pushers clapped hands and smiled, following each introduction.

Pretty nearly at the end of the introductions Miss Hornaday mentioned the name of a famous "beautician." An undercurrent of commotion sped from table to table. The six hundred became galvanized in a desperate, if polite, curiosity to look.

CENTER OF INTEREST

As one neck, they craned forward and surged to their feet in the direction of the lady whose wares are understood to transform the plainest. The "beautician" continued to sit pretty, while wives of great men and ladies who had tasted greatness on their own account, squirmed for a peek.

The club president urged the cynosure to stand, that everyone might gaze their fill on one who could turn back the clock and hand out youth and beauty by personal appointment. Curiosity continued unslaked. The "beautician," of diminutive size, was invisible in the crowd.

Polite murmurs of protest ran 'round the six hundred. Newspaper women who, without turning a hair, could write stories of battle, murder and sudden death warranted to make women weep and strong men grow pale wriggled in frantic interest to get a glimpse of the miracle worker.

THEY ALL GAZED

Again the voice of Miss Hornaday speaking, begging the revamper of faces to stand on a chair so that all might see. Agile as an eel, the beautician, who is said to have reached the incredible age of 46 (we hope we've got that age right) floated upward, light as thistledown, and stood on a chair.

The Who's-Who-ers, wives of statesmen, star reporters and a pontifical commentator on the news drank their fill of the little lady, who could make them each and all beautiful.

Perhaps none of these up-and-doing ladies cherished a dream of ever launching a thousand ships or burning the tops of skyscrapers. They would be satisfied with less. Downright beauty could be had for the asking—beauty in pots, jars, boxes, manipulation of wrinkles and exercises for crepey necks.

Perhaps next day they would be too busy to go after it, but the little lady standing on the chair was there to prove it. Peace be to Allah!

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I'm a freshman at one of the best colleges in Boston. I'm doing part-time work to help pay my expenses, and my mother and sister are also helping.

Enter trouble and vexation in the shape of a beautiful girl.

She has suggested that we be married, and that I take a position she can get for me.

Her mother has an important job in a department store, and is willing to take me on in the men's clothing department. I'm supposed to wear my clothes well.

My mother is broken-hearted over this decision, but says it's foolish of me to continue in college if I'm more interested in a girl than in my work.

I should be glad for an impersonal opinion from someone who is not acquainted with any of us.

STUDENT.

I think you and the beautiful girl are very likely to kindle a place of torment for both, if you quit college and marry her at 19 years of age.

If you and the girl really love each other, I think you can afford to wait.

If you can't, I think it's probably just another case of youthful infatuation.

You will certainly go farther in life if you get a good education and make the valuable contacts a young man makes in college, than if you leave now and go into a department store.

Changes are frequent in department stores, so you may lose the job and the beautiful girl may change her mind.

I hope you will decide on college and make a success of it.

Youthful Throat Line

POSED BY ELIZABETH ALLEN

By ARLINE GOULD

WHAT is the most beautiful line of a woman's body? Since time immemorial artists have quarreled over this issue . . . some believing it to be the long, lithe curve from the hip down . . . others making immortal on canvas the beautiful curving lines of the arm.

If you believe as we do that the most IMPORTANT line is that of the throat—firm, smooth and lovely of contour—then today's beauty preachment should be of interest to you.

Double chins may not come in the night, but it is certainly true that they often multiply as fast as rabbits in a magician's hat. Once that muscles and tissues become weakened the whole throat structure collapses.

A neck which has taken on "fiddle strings" takes first place in the dismal parade of beauty ills. Thirty—even 25 is none too early to begin special throat care.

For one thing the skin of the neck droops and becomes flabby more quickly than that of the face. Why? Because oil glands diminish there at alarming speed.

In spite of all of nature's warnings, it is seldom that a woman starts repair work until she is past forty. Then, it is often too late. Flaccid, inactive muscles cannot be coaxed back in shape and all the stimulants and astringents in the world are of little help.

One of the most famous of all cosmeticians has evolved a home treatment to keep the throat slender and young. It is the same treatment now being used in her Fifth avenue salon.

This treatment consists of strengthening exercises as well as a course of massage. Not only will muscles be kept active and toned, but blood streams will be kept skipping about, making fibers firm and tissues full.

To obtain this famous treatment for a youthful throat, write Arline Gould, Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

WHAT OF IT!

Go on!
You've made a mistake?
Well, what if you have?
Maybe you needed
To make that mistake.
Maybe you needed
The salty seasoning
Of that foolishness,
Its tempering sense
And balancing soundness,
More than you've ever Needed any Success in your life.

Successes? Yes,
Doing the
The right time—
That's mighty soothing
To one's self-esteem.
But maybe, pal,
Your self-esteem
Needed a jolt!
Maybe you needed
To be a fool
So you could better
Understand other fools?
Maybe you needed
To be a sap,
To bring you down, level
With other saps.

Being good—
Doing right—
Coming out tops—
They're all a rose
In your buttonhole.
They make you feel
You're sitting pretty
With God's
Elected saints.
But sometimes, perhaps,
A little shot
Of hell is helpful
For what ails you, kid.

Of tolerance
Is worth a ton
Of righteousness.
Sometimes a little
Purging shame,
Belittling foolishness
And cleansing failure
May do more for
You and your world
Than a carload lot
Of harps 'n' halos.

And so I'm saying,
Get up, kid,
And get going!
Made a fool
Of yourself?
Gone gutter?
Turned swine?
Been—all of a sudden—
A first rate rat?
Well, s'pose you have—
That's life!
That's just as much
Part of life
As singing
Halleujahs!

Growing is
A funny business.
Dirt is made of
Curious things.
Lilies sometimes
Start in dung heaps.
Violets
Were garbage—once.
Get up, partner,
And get going!
Never mind
The hurt and shame.
Take 'em!
Use 'em!
Thank God for them!
Thank Him for
This larger learning.
Use it for
A larger living.
Maybe out of
All your garbage
You may raise some Violets, yet!

"He didn't exactly ask me to marry him, but I'm sure that's what he meant."

Resume of Spring Fashions

FASHIONS this spring have much that is new and exciting about them. "There's something in the air" that has put all the designers on their mettle. They have outdone themselves in creating beautiful, elegant, wearable clothes.

The cycle is complete and we are back again in a period of trimmings. Throughout the mode, but especially for evening, applied decoration, such as embroidery, beading, spangles, paillettes, encrustations and handwork of all kinds, is almost as widely used as it was before the war.

The silhouette adheres to the natural figure, with normal waistline, smooth, slightly rounded shoulders and molded upper stratum. The figure, as a matter of fact, should look corsetted. The clothes are basically simple and it is upon this simplicity heightened by accessories, trimmings, rich fabrics and color that fashion has relied for its newest aspects.

Suits head the list for Spring. They show an amazing versatility.

Do Dreams Come True?

A girl in a beauty contest dreamed that she won. She did. But—half the girls in the contest had similar dreams. Plainly only one of these wish-fulfilment dreams could come true.

A schoolgirl whose family can't afford the fine clothes she loves dreams she's dressed in splendor. Her dream probably will come true.

Often we ourselves make our fear dreams come true. A student working on term exam nights sees himself falling off a cliff. His unconscious mind is saying "I'm going to fail"—so he does.

Do you dream wild animals are leaping at you? The animals are only symbols. Think! What is it you fear? Debts? "Nerves"? Face the facts, adjust yourself to meet the circumstances, keep fear dreams from coming true.

Some dreams are an escape, show our unwillingness to face reality. A girl postpones her marriage because of interfering relatives.

She pictures herself and her fiance on a desert isle. "If only there were no one to interfere, we'd be happy," she says in her sleep.

Instead of bucking the relatives and going through with marriage, she chooses this easier but unsatisfactory way of finding happiness in a dream.

Dreams tell you things about yourself you never knew before. Our 40-page booklet, "Interpreting Your Dreams," gives typical dreams, meaning of dream symbols, puts you wise to the working of your sleeping mind.

Send 15c for our booklet, "Interpreting Your Dreams," to Boston Evening American Home Institute, 109 West 19th street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Cooky Jar Candidates

Try Them With Burnt Butter Icing

By MARTHA LEE

WE always divide cookies into two classes.

The good, sturdy old reliables that we keep on hand for family use such as the fat brown molasses cookies that father likes with a glass of milk before he goes to bed.

Then there are the spicy ginger cookies the children like after school—and the golden looking lumpy nougats filled with fruit and nuts that they take with them to school in their lunch boxes.

Oh, we could go on and on telling you about the members of this branch of the cooky family. Of course, you've already guessed that the other class of cookies includes the dressier—more upstage cookies that we serve at parties.

We'll tell you more about them some other time. But right now we have some suggestions for the good old family cooky jar.

The family have their favorites, of course, but they'll welcome a surprise now and then, providing the newcomers are sufficiently delicious. And we think all of these will be.

BUTTERSCOTCH COOKIES WITH BURNT BUTTER ICING

½ cup butter
1¼ cups brown sugar
2 eggs
2¼ cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon soda
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup sour cream
1 teaspoon vanilla
2-3 cup walnuts

Cream butter, add sugar gradually, and cream thoroughly. Blend in the well-beaten eggs. Sift flour once before measuring. Sift flour, baking powder, soda and salt together, and add to the creamed mixture alternately with the sour cream. Blend in the vanilla and nuts. Chill until the dough is firm. Drop by teaspoonfuls on lightly-greased baking sheet. (Leave a space of at least 2 inches between each cooky to allow for spreading.) Bake 10 to 15 minutes in a moderately hot oven, 400 F. When cookies are cool, spread with burnt butter icing. This makes 5 dozen cookies.

RAISIN FILLED COOKIES

½ cup shortening (half butter for flavor)
1½ cups brown sugar
1 egg
3½ cups all-purpose flour
¾ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon soda
½ cup sour milk
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon vanilla

Cream shortening, add sugar gradually and cream well. Blend in the well-beaten egg. Sift the flour once before measuring. Sift the flour, salt, soda and baking powder together and add to the creamed mixture alternately with the sour milk. Blend in the vanilla. Place the dough in the refrigerator to chill about 45 minutes.

Roll out about 1-16 inch thick on a cloth-covered board (using flour rubbed into the cloth to keep the dough from sticking). Cut out rounds (or any shape desired). There should be two pieces alike for each cooky. Place the pieces to be used for the bottom of the cookies on a heavy ungreased cooky sheet or pan.

Place a generous teaspoon of raisin filling on each piece. Place pieces to be used as tops over the filling. Press edges firmly together and bake for 10 to 12 minutes in moderately hot oven, 400 F.

FIG NEWTONS

Mix the dough as for Raisin Filled Cookies. Roll out a rectangular strip about 4 inches wide and 12 inches long. Spread Fig Filling along one side of the strip (not quite covering ½ of it—only about 1½ inches wide.) Fold over remaining strip of dough to cover the filling, then fold it under the edge of the strip at the bottom. This makes a flat roll about 2¼ inches wide. With a sharp knife cut into bars 2½ inches long. Bake as Raisin Filled Cookies.

Fig Filling: Same as Raisin Filling—except substitute ground figs for raisins and use only ½ cup sugar and one tablespoon lemon juice with the grated rind of one lemon, 2 tablespoons flour and one cup hot water.

KILL THOSE ROACHES

Made expressly to kill roaches, Peterman's Roach Food gets them all—young and eggs too. Just scatter the powder along baseboards, in floor cracks, under sink, etc. Roaches eat, return to nest and die, leaving NO ODOR. A 24-hour-a-day killer. Safe to use. 25¢, 35¢ and 60¢ a can at any drug store

JESUIT TALKS ON EVOLUTION AT HARVARD

[illegible] Father De Chardin [illegible] on record as stating [illegible] two missing [illegible] Sinanthropus [illegible] and the Ape.

The Sinanthropus [illegible] Man [illegible] was discovered [illegible] south of Pekin [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] between the Neanderthal [illegible] and the Ape.

"The discovery of the Sinanthropus," declared Father De Chardin, "leads us to believe that there was a wide gap between the different forms of human. For instance, the difference between the "Pekinese Man" and the Neanderthal is just as great as the difference between the Neanderthal and the modern human.

"The Sinanthropus, possessing a very thick skull, was undoubtedly not as far advanced mentally as the Neanderthal, whose mentality was not even comparable to that of modern man.

"BROAD EARS"

"Whereas the Neanderthal's cranium was low and jutting, there was at least some semblance of human form. The Sinanthropus on the other hand possessed an extremely low skull. He had very broad ears and unlike those of an animal, and had a wide protrusion in the region of the eyes which formed an abutment from brow to skull top.

[illegible]

"MUST ACCEPT FACTS"

[illegible]

"As a scientist I must accept the facts. And the facts lead me to believe there was a human evolution. Man must be considered as [illegible] from the apes and in this discovery there should be no [illegible] for Christianity.

"There were two important events in creation. First there had to be life and secondly there had to be the appearance of thought. So far we have found three types of man. The Sinanthropus, the Neanderthal and the modern human. In each instance the leaning has been to greater mental advances.

"But don't get the idea that man has reached the ultimate in knowledge. I, personally, believe that he hasn't. Others will probably dispute this fact but man, a "thinking animal," has a long way to go yet before utilizing his mental process to its extreme.

SHEILA PLANS SUMMER HERE

THIS IS LIFE

BY

Robert E. Rogers

ROBERT E. ROGERS

On Tuesday evening I had the opportunity of [illegible] the most successful example [illegible] education project here in the East. It is the South Orange-Maplewood adult school situated in New Jersey between Newark and Montclair. A former colleague of mine at Technology, Mr. J. Keith Torbert of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company in New York and school committeeman in Maplewood, is founder and builder [illegible] community enterprise, which during the first term last fall registered more than [illegible] adult pupils in some 40 courses [illegible] on two nights a week.

It was an impressive [illegible] building with all [illegible] auditorium filled [illegible] to be filled with a [illegible] and parking places [illegible]

Many Useful Crafts Are Taught There

[illegible] sponsored by local univer[illegible] private group, as is [illegible] Boston extensions. [illegible] community enterprise man[illegible] by local business men [illegible] a certain amount of [illegible] Princeton University [illegible] many miles away.

[illegible] interesting and unusual is [illegible] Although Maplewood [illegible] are some miles from the sea [illegible] who go in for boating during [illegible] they have been able to support [illegible] two-term course in elementary [illegible] sponsored and instructed [illegible] Power Squadron. It is a com[illegible] piloting, emphasizing [illegible] plotting a course, use of [illegible] and current tables, and [illegible] needs.

Bible and Shakespeare Prove Popular Studies

The cultural courses fare quite as well. [illegible] psychology for parents have [illegible] One in the Bible from [illegible] what used to be called "the [illegible] attracts many. And every [illegible] Professor Emeritus George Lyman [illegible] Harvard journeys to Maplewood to [illegible] Shakespeare; Fact and [illegible] Shakespeare, Macbeth, King Lear, [illegible] Shakespeare's Villains, lec[illegible] familiar to us hereabout but novel [illegible] power down in those parts.

In [illegible] Hermann Hagedorn has spoken [illegible] Edwin Arlington Robinson, [illegible] is writing; Carl Carmer, [illegible] on Alabama" and "Listen [illegible] upon modern American [illegible] Harold B. Speight, formerly [illegible] now of Swarthmore, on Bi[illegible] J. Duncan Spaeth, formerly of [illegible] and your humble servant.

Many Women Find Chance to Study Now

I [illegible] to wander about the cor[illegible] before I "went on" to [illegible] activities of this adult school. [illegible] as if they were still [illegible] drawing from a model [illegible] and criticized by an [illegible] Academy, a course in [illegible] which has proved well [illegible] its outgrowth, in choral [illegible] typing and dressmaking, some [illegible] householders in a practical [illegible] "consumers' chemistry," and a [illegible] piano instruction.

[illegible] an enormously interesting demon[illegible] self-dependent community of [illegible] on its own without subsidy, [illegible] registration fee of $2.00 per [illegible] was developed and how it [illegible] learned from a volume re[illegible] J. Keith Torbert, "An Ex[illegible] Education" (Macmillan). In[illegible] New Jersey is having a regional con[illegible] on the subject covering four states at [illegible] Friday of this week.

HURLEY Weighs Oath REPEAL

GOVERNOR MAY ACT QUICKLY

Governor Hurley was today studying the bill to repeal the teachers' oath law passed by the 1935 Legislature.

The highly controversial issue was dumped into the chief executive's office following almost three weeks' debate in both branches of the Legislature.

The bill was enacted in the House by a relatively vote of 112 to 104 and by the Senate with [illegible] record vote.

When questioned about the bill the governor refused to indicate his attitude.

5 DAYS ALLOWED

Speculation as to the possibility that he might evade the issue through a failure to either veto or sign the bill within the five days allowed for gubernatorial action on bills was dissipated by the Governor, however.

He declared that he expected to act promptly.

There was some talk by those close to the Governor that he would stand by the Legionnaires and patriotic societies and send back the measure with a stinging message.

Having already taken a vigorous stand on sit-down strikes, it was argued that it would in some measure be a reversal of his law and order policy to give even tacit support to anything which might be construed as a weakening of respect to the state or federal constitutions.

But if the governor is disposed this way he is carefully guarding any such determination.

LAID TO POLITICS

Political reasons alone, the governor knows, are responsible for the bill being upon his desk. Senator Joseph A. Langone, Democrat, of Boston, held the fate of the bill in his hand. His single vote could have brought about the defeat of the measure on two occasions in the upper chamber. Langone made no secret of his opposition to repeal and boasted that he voted the other way for the sole purpose of "putting the governor on the spot."

Observers are now wondering if the North Ender, in the event that the governor vetoes the bill, will not be confounded—that he may have flipped the card which will build up the governor instead of tearing him down.

Prof. Toner Made Edison Auditor

James V. Toner, professor of accounting at Boston University college of business administration, today began his duties as auditor of the Boston Edison Company.

His appointment was announced yesterday by Frank D. Comerford, president of the company.

A certified public accountant for many years, Toner has a national reputation as the author and co-author of a number of standard books on accounting practice. He has specialized in tax and business reorganization affairs.

Tiny Gloucester Baby Thriving

Gloucester, April 1—One of the smallest babies ever born in Massachusetts, an infant girl weighing only one pound, eight ounces, was reported doing well today in Addison-Gilbert Hospital here.

The mother is Mrs. George Riley of Langsford street, Lanesville. Her condition is also good, doctors said today. The father is a Gloucester city department employe.

SHEILA BARRETT ANN MARSTERS

Cost of Operation City Hospital's Major Problem

The high cost of operation is the major problem facing the Boston City Hospital today.

This is the opinion of Dr. James W. Manary, superintendent of the hospital, who in a report made to the Rotary Club of Boston points out that in less than 15 years the cost of operation of City Hospital has increased from $400,000 per year to more than $1,000,000 per year.

Such equipment today entails great expense and must be installed by any city owned institution if it hopes to keep pace with heavily endowed private hospitals. He said:

"Fifty years ago a city hospital was generally considered a place to go and die. Today we are proud to say that our City Hospital is second to none, both in efficiency, equipment and staff operation."

B. U. WILL HEAR DR. CORWIN

Students of Boston University will hear Dr. Edward S. Corwin, noted Princeton sociologist, deliver the tenth annual Gaspar G. Bacon lecture on the Constitution tomorrow morning in Jacob Sleeper Hall.

Dr. Corwin, who recently told a Senate investigating committee that the Supreme Court had "thrown the administration's objectives into a [illegible]," will speak on "the Supreme Court and the Constitution."

An associate of President Wilson in 1905, Dr. Corwin is one of the outstanding authorities on jurisprudence in the country. He was president of the Political Science American Association.

The lecture given annually at Boston University for a better knowledge of the Constitution was founded by Mrs. Robert Bacon, mother of former Lieutenant Governor Gaspar G. Bacon, a trustee of the university.

MIMIC Maps New TRYOUT

MISS BARRETT AT MAYFAIR

By ANN MARSTERS

Sheila Barrett is a very clever girl. You'll know why presently, but first you must know that she began a week's engagement at the Mayfair last evening where she is presenting her deliciously satirical impersonations.

She is clever because she has [illegible] name [illegible] in the [illegible] world. And she has done so with her own material [illegible]. No one but Sheila Barrett writes Sheila Barrett's material.

She is clever because she has persistently evaded offers from Hollywood. There might be a difference of opinion about that—but when you talk with Sheila you realize that she is looking for something more than just "easy money." She wants to go on creating and developing her own art—and Hollywood, she believes, would [illegible] a [illegible].

Ambitious Plan

"I want to see how far I can go with my own ideas," she said, "before I let Hollywood turn me into just another comedian.

"I have a very ambitious plan for this summer. I want to tour the various summer places through New England and give recitals. I'm not sure that 'recitals' is quite the word for it—but anyway, I want to give an evening's program that I think will be rather different from anything that has been attempted in that line."

She means that she is not going to try to imitate the sort of thing that Cornelia Otis Skinner or Ruth Draper do. She will do pretty much the same thing that she is now doing in night clubs, yet she will concentrate more on characterizations rather than impersonations.

"I shall make it a gay program," she said, "so that people will come to see me to be entertained—not just for 'art's sake'."

She plans to visit such places as Newport, Narragansett, Cohasset, and various towns on the Cape.

Try Experiment

"I am so anxious to have it turn out well," she said, "because it may lead to some very nice things in the future. After all, you can go just so far in night club work—and then what have you?"

She shrugged her shoulders in answer, and then she laughed and said:

"I suppose New York will say that Barrett is taking herself seriously. But I am not—really. I just want to make a kind of experiment with myself. If it's successful, then I can take it into the theater in the fall, and—oh well, we'll see what happens."

Whatever happens, I personally am quite convinced that Miss Sheila Barrett is a great mimic and a great actress [illegible].

Stars Liked It

[illegible] also a very real person and she has [illegible] with people who [illegible] just because they happen to [illegible] in Hollywood [illegible] where [illegible] people are very [illegible] [illegible] which [illegible] never [illegible] Her sense of humor is so delightful that even her targets can [illegible].

That fact was demonstrated when she was last in Hollywood [illegible] appearing at one of the night clubs which is frequented by the stars. [illegible] [illegible] Hollywood [illegible] [illegible] And Hollywood [illegible] liked it.

After her appearance at the Mayfair she will go to the Savoy [illegible] in New York for an indefinite engagement. Meanwhile we should all take advantage of the fact that Sheila Barrett is in town [illegible] a magnificent entertainer.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

BY

Marjorie McBride

MARJORIE McBRIDE

A 77-year-old man starts his long trek West this morning. He came to Boston this week, having hitch-hiked more than 3500 miles to be on hand for the celebration of Oliver C. Elliot's 45th anniversary at the Boston Industrial Home in the South End.

His story is perhaps the most eloquent tribute to Superintendent Elliot's career.

It was a [illegible] night seven years ago that "Alex" appeared at the Home. His interview with [illegible] was brief. He remembered that he said:

"I don't suppose you'll help me. I'm an ex-con. Got out of Sing Sing a couple of days ago. I'm no good."

"Elliot hardly listened," he says. "He just looked me up and down and then he said calmly, 'I don't want to hear any more. Your supper is ready. Better eat and go to bed.'"

Creed That Gives Men Another Chance in Life

Alex stayed at the Home [illegible]. When he left [illegible] a kit of carpenter's tools to go to work with. More important [illegible] away the memory of a man who [illegible]:

At the Home now there are more than 1[illegible] men getting the same "kindly" treatment day after day. Statistics [illegible] that [illegible] is 7000 [illegible] the past two months . . . 5000 [illegible] in the last four weeks . . . the average man stays four days . . . that there has never been a [illegible] at the Home.

But there are unwritten records. The doors never close. No sober man or woman is ever turned away. In the 6[illegible] years of the Home's existence there has been almost nothing stolen.

It's Always Depression Time for Unfortunates

In Elliot's long experience there is always a state of depression among certain people. There are always those who are discouraged and in distress. Sometimes when he is uncertain about a man's sincerity in going straight he remembers way back to the day when he himself came to the Home seeking a night's lodging and solace.

Many of the men and women keep in touch with him after they've straightened up and gone their way. He thinks Alex didn't come back so much just to see him but because he was plain homesick!

Brass Rails on Bars and How They Came

Archibald S. Parker of Arlington has been making bars for 40 years. He is an authority on the subject, and says a common misconception is that brass rails were originally put in bar-rooms to give men some place to rest one foot while lifting a drink.

"They were installed," he says, "to keep customers from kicking and denting the valuable mahogany bars. Also to protect the base of the bar from coarse and injurious soaps used to mop the floors. Bars have a fine base cemented onto rubber now, and can't be damaged to any extent unless you take an axe to them. But through the years men got used to the brass rails. Lots of men want them, and don't feel at home if the rails are missing."

By JACK CONWAY

I HAVE BEEN talking with various local citizens who stopped off to take a look at the Red Sox training at Sarasota, Fla. They agree that the Sox are taking their baseball more seriously than they did a year ago, and that the team should make a better showing in the American League pennant scramble.

Mr Boston

After watching the high salaried Red Sox play last season, I [illegible] that Tom Yawkey was [illegible] in the world. [illegible] club after [illegible]

The Sox [illegible] wealth and good [illegible]. Most of them were [illegible] on their past records, and certainly on what they showed last season.

The most ridiculous holdout of the year was Jimmy Foxx. Jim objected to a salary cut, and refused to sign until a compromise figure was submitted to him.

Foxx knew better than anybody else he had proved a dismal flop last year. In justice to the player, he is anxious to make amends this year, which is why he went to Florida so early. He determined to get into the best possible physical condition

[illegible]

I believe the Red Sox need fighting spirit even more than they do ball players. They have tremendous latent hardball strength if they [illegible]

Joe Cronin has been too mild with some of his players who have not delivered as they should. Cronin has been employing different tactics in the South, and I hope he continues along similar lines once the league season opens.

I can picture what Bill Carrigan, John McGraw, Hughey Jennings and some of the other great managers of other years would have said to some of the Sox prima donnas of last season after watching their feeble efforts to [illegible]

In addition there will be new safety fences around the track and a special linked fence surrounding the entire racing plant

FRED HOEY Writes:

BROOKLYN HOME OF DAFFODILS | LOPEZ LUCKY TO ESCAPE

Hello, everybody. This is Fred Hoey speaking:

Senor Alfonso Raimon Lopez had his share of weird experiences while he was on the Brooklyn payroll, and he can thank Bob Quinn for rescuing him from that dangerous atmosphere before he became permanently goofy. Lopez is a sparkling catcher, one of the very best, but he once suffered a brainstorm in Brooklyn.

Fred Hoey

Two years ago the Braves were playing in Brooklyn. With the bases loaded, the batter bunted to Pitcher Dutch Leonard, who fielded the ball cleanly. He had a double play before him, via second base. But Lopez dashed out to the pitcher's box, deliberately grabbed Dutch and turned him toward left field. The secret of this inside baseball has never been revealed by Al.

In the same year, however, Lopez managed to shake off the Brooklyn spell when he was chosen to catch in the All-Star game. In this 1934 game Al contributed the smartest play ever executed in this annual battle, and his victims were two intelligent players, Joe Cronin and Mickey Cochrane.

Cronin was on second, Cochrane on first and Averill at the bat. The [illegible] was flashed. Both runners were on [illegible] Averill struck out. Cronin tried to turn back to second and Cochrane was forced to pull up going into the same base. [illegible] either man with a throw. With the ball in his hand, Lopez trotted out to the pitcher's box, giving both [illegible] as if Lopez had hypnotized Cronin and [illegible] perfectly still. Al continued to bear down on them [illegible] up to Cronin and tagged him out [illegible]

BACK IN 1932 Brooklyn had Watson Clark pitching in a game at P[illegible]. During the course of the game Clark delivered a [illegible] through with his left arm extended and head ben[illegible]

A [illegible] runner started to steal second on the pitch. Lopez got off a low, hard throw, so low and hard in fact, that it conked Clark. The ball caromed off Clark's head and went out, almost on the fly to Lefty O'Doul, who was playing one of the deepest center fields in the major leagues. Clark straightened up, rubbed his head and called for the ball.

Who else but a Dodger could display such fortitude?

TRIPLES INTO DOUBLE PLAY

ACCORDING TO LEGEND, Babe Herman tripled into a triple play. However this isn't true, for the Dodgers had one out at the time. Dazzy Vance was on third, Chick Fewster on second, when Herman hit a long fly to right. It was a question whether the ball would hit the fence or be caught by a Braves outfielder. So Vance and Fewster held their bases.

Now enters the villain, Charlie Chaplin Herman. Babe knew he had hit the ball good and hard, and to him that meant only one thing—RUN. The ball finally hit the fence.

Vance started home, Fewster started for third, but Herman had a head start. He swept around second and passed Fewster as if that worthy gent had been standing still. Otto Miller, coaching at third, yelled "go back," meaning of course Herman, but Vance thought the coach meant him. So Dazzy, halfway home, headed back for third.

It made a pretty picture as he and Babe slid into third from opposite directions.

Fewster meanwhile had given up trying to figure things out, so he started to walk back to second base to start for the next inning. Doc Gautreau, Braves second baseman, dashed over to third and tagged both Vance and Herman. The umpire called Herman out for passing Fewster but ruled, of course, that Vance was entitled to the base. There were still only two out.

The third out occurred when Gautreau chased Fewster almost to the right field fence to tag him out. It's a wonder Fewster didn't keep right on running, right out of the ball park, followed by the entire Brooklyn team.

THREE RUNS WITHOUT A HIT

WHAT OTHER CLUB could see the opposition send nine men to bat and score three runs without a hit or an error?

The Pirates did it in Brooklyn on July 28, 1936, in the fourth inning. Max Butcher walked six men to force two runs in, and Billy Brubaker scored another with an outfield fly.

Dazzy Vance of Brooklyn would have joined Rube Marquard in [illegible] 19 straight wins except for a single. Yes, a single [illegible] in most cases with men runners on third and second, but [illegible] it was the Dodgers who were performing.

It's [illegible] of Sept. 20, 1924, and the Daffy Boys are [illegible] P[illegible]. The score is tied 4-4, going into the last of the [illegible] Vance is seeking his 16th consecutive victory. [illegible] base when a Pittsburgh player singles [illegible] handled cleanly in the Dodger outfield, [illegible] first base with the winning run. Inci[illegible] three games.

THE THREE OUTSTANDING rookie players of the spring season are Bobby Doerr of the Red Sox, Steve Mesner of the White Sox and Mickey Owen, the dashing Cardinal catcher. Would you believe it, these three [illegible] played on the same amateur team in Los Angeles 10 years ago? Johnny Mullen, the 21-year-old Lowell fan, who, we believe, tops all baseball research workers, digs up this fact. We agree with Johnny when he states that you will seldom find three 12 and 13 year old future major league stars chumming around together.

SHIP MOSOLF TO DALLAS

Di Maggio Moved to Garden

By BILL GRIMES

St. Petersburgh, Fla., April 1—It's going to be just too bad for any member of the Bees who's under the impression that he's a comedian and pops up with an April Fool's Day joke today within the hearing of Manager Bill McKechnie.

It'll be around Labor Day before Bill McKechnie rids his mind of that nightmare that occurred yesterday over in Tampa, where the Bees were defeated by the Cincinnati Reds, 11 to 10.

"I want every mother's son of you in uniform tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock," yelled McKechnie, when he recovered his facilities, which was not until the Bees' boss was on the Gandy Bridge, about six miles from Plantfield "We'll work out until about noon. You'll have lunch in the clubhouse, and then there'll be a nine-inning game in the afternoon between the Regulars and the Yannigans, if I can decide which is which."

Mosolf Flops

Before leaving for Waterfront Park this morning McKechnie announced that the Bees had returned Jim Mosolf to the Dallas club of the Texas League.

Mosolf failed to measure up to expectations. He was fairly impressive with the bat, but he was so far away from major league calibre as a fielder, thrower and base runner that the Bees decided to forfeit the money they'd paid to keep him out of the draft in order to take him up and see what he had to offer.

Buck Jordan will play first for the Yannigans today. He has not played any ball this spring according to his own admission. He did nothing, while trying to get a [illegible] per cent contract boost, but a little road work.

George Gondira, a 22-year-old right-hander the Bees brought up from McKeesport, will start on the mound for the Regulars. Gondira, who started his pro career with Superior, Wis., three years ago, has registered with McKechnie.

He hasn't pitched in any of the Grapefruit League games but has looked so effective in batting practice that McKechnie is seriously considering holding him with the Bees.

Vince Shifted

McKechnie has repeatedly stated that Gondira has a fine chance of developing into a National League star.

Vince DiMaggio, who has flopped with the willow, will be in center field for the Yannigans today and Frank McGowan will be in the outfield for the same aggregation.

In all probabilities, the Bees will go through the same procedure tomorrow, which is another open date and will wind up their stay here with Buffalo, on Saturday, and the Phillies, on Sunday.

Big John L. was Easy-Goin'

BUT HE HAD THE PUNCH THAT MAKES A CHAMPION!

By "Silver Dollar" Brady

JOHN L. SULLIVAN was plumb polite to everybody, genial and agreeable-like.

But squared-off in the ring, he meant business! Whenever he let go with the old "one-two" the referee automatically said "-nine-ten!" He could punch.

And a champeen whiskey, like Silver Dollar, is agreeable, too. It makes heaps of friends—and it keeps every one of them.

But there's nothin' "sissy" about it. It "takes hold" with a heart-warmin' glow. Silver Dollar Bourbon is gentle-actin' but you know it's there!

Silver Dollar is smooth and mellow as a Western sunset. It's distilled the slow, honest way—an' there's 79 years' experience back of every drop.

Only choice grains, same as goes into expensive whiskies, and tested spring water are used. Then Silver Dollar is aged in charred oak for 18 months, for added richness and quality. That's why it's so pleasant to drink straight or mixed up in fancy highballs.

Try Silver Dollar today, folks. Step into the nearest tavern, or better yet, take a bottle home with you tonight. You'll sure like this gentle actin' straight Bourbon—an' you'll be coming back for more!

Vanderbilt Entry In Inaugural Feature

By DAVE WILSON

BEST BET—SPEED TO SPARE

Bowie, Race Track, Md., April 1—Speed to Spare, a fast-stepping colt from the fashionable stable of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, rates tops over smart sprinters listed to match strides in the $5000 added Rowe Memorial Handicap, six furlong feature on the inaugural card of the 1937 Eastern racing season here today.

He has received a careful prep under the watchful eyes of astute Bud Stotler. Under 115 pounds the Balko colt needs only a hustling ride to lead from end to end.

FIRST—Real Jam, High Torque, Headin' Home.

Stringing along with REAL JAM in this wide open number. This racer campaigned with success at Tropical and Hialeah parks. The opposition appears right to measure HIGH TORQUE, which raced well at New Orleans, shapes up slightly better than HEADIN' HOME in the fight for place honors. The latter is far down on the also eligible list and may not get postwards.

SECOND—Zebulo, Sang Froid, Cosette

ZEBULO was a pretty shifty sort in company of this same calibre at Oaklawn Park. He has the advantage of racing condition and needs only an even shake in racing luck to insure brackets. SANG FROID is the class, but he has been away from the races since last fall. May prove a tough nut to crack if up to a race. COSETTE looms next best.

THIRD—Patch Pocket, Aroused, Cruising

FOURTH—Conservative, Mary Keen, My Elsie

CONSERVATIVE on Florida form shapes [illegible] superior to this [illegible] of three-year-old [illegible] MARY KEEN [illegible] MY ELSIE [illegible] in the fight for place honors. The latter holds some class and should go well in an affair of this sort

FIFTH—Speed to Spare, Rudie, Billy Bee

SPEED TO SPARE should be all that his name implies in this affair. Contention, if any, may be furnished by RUDIE. The latter is a hard-hitting three-year-old, but has all the worst of the weight allotments. BILLY BEE, away since last fall, comes strongly recom-

SIXTH—Ilchester, Continuity, Exaggeration

ILCHESTER, in my book, isn't eligible to start in this race, but should never leave the result in doubt providing he gets postwards. CONTINUITY developed into a handy sort of a racing tool during the late stages of the Florida season. The Cotologmer Miss should have things her own way if the top selection fails to start. EXAGGERATION likes the Bowie track.

SEVENTH — Count Me, Black-Mail, Mad Frump

COUNT ME isn't much horse, but he managed to master several fields of this same calibre in Florida last winter. He seems to hold a decided edge over BLACKMAIL in the fight for main honors. The latter turned in several fair efforts at Oaklawn before shipping here. MAD FRUMP is endowed with a smattering of class.

'Cracked Ice' Opens Tomorrow

"Cracked Ice," the most elaborate ice carnival ever attempted by The Skating Club of Boston, will open at the Garden tomorrow night.

It will continue through a Saturday matinee, and Saturday night.

As features extraordinary, The Skating Club is bringing to Boston two of the world's most renowned skaters, Karl Schafer, world and Olympic champion, and Mlle. Melitta Brunner, both of Austria.

Schafer is the acme of figure skating, and the opportunity of watching him in action is a rare treat for New England ice enthusiasts.

Miss Brunner has a technique distinctly different from those other feminine stars who have graced the Boston Garden ice this year.

Miss Brunner does her numbers in beautiful interpretive dance rhythm

It is safe to predict that the blonde Viennese skater's torch dance is going to leave a lasting impression on those who see "Cracked Ice."

CARROLL, Laffe Meet 4TH TIME

With a shot at Lou Brouillard and the N. E. middleweight championship in sight, Don Labbe of Lewiston and Eddie Carroll of Lowell collide for the fourth time tonight at Egleston Square Stadium in the 10-round feature of Eddie Mack's weekly show.

It will be a toss-up when Labbe and Carroll roar from their corners.

They fought two spectacular 10 round draws in their last two meetings, which is one for Ripley.

They had trained to go 12 rounds tonight. Early this week, follow a mild beef by Brouillard, the state boxing commission decided Mack's feature would be a non-title affair since Brouillard was still N. E. middleweight king. With no title involved, the fight was cut to 10 rounds.

Mack intends to put the victor with Lou in his first outdoor show at National League Park the middle of May.

Kelley blasted his way by Gene Bonin recently at Egleston astounding the fans and experts with the neat manner in which he did this. Fitch has likewise whipped Bonin.

"IT'S A CINCH TO SOLVE!"

SAYS Julius Kessler

CAN YOU FIGURE IT OUT?
IN LESS THAN 2 MINUTES CAN YOU THINK OF FIVE DIFFERENT WAYS TO MAKE CHANGE FOR 30 CENTS—
NOT COUNTING PENNIES
for example 2 dimes and 2 nickles
SOLUTION PRINTED UPSIDE DOWN BELOW

"If you're puzzled over your choice of whiskey, just use your common sense...switch to a light, mild, blended whiskey, like this Private Blend of mine."

Julius Kessler, 82 year old dean of the distilling industry, who has made and sold more fine whiskey than any other living man.

With over 4000 different brands of whiskey on the market, it's a puzzle WHICH ONE TO CHOOSE. When you stop to think about it, your GOOD JUDGMENT tells you to keep to a BLENDED WHISKEY that's got plenty of STRENGTH—yet is light and mild.

I blend my whiskey for men who use COMMON SENSE in their drinking—men who choose their whiskey with care, and DRINK IT WITH JUDGMENT. Kessler's Private Blend is rich—FULL 90 PROOF. Yet it's LIGHT—a BLENDED whiskey...the kind of whiskey men with common sense prefer.

Try Kessler's Private Blend at the bar. Or use a pint at home with friends. IT WON'T COST YOU MUCH. But if it doesn't come up to your expectations, let me know where you bought it, and I'll see that you get your MONEY BACK.

150 NORTH QUINCY PUPILS BOWL IN TOURNEY

BAND Leads Parade HERE

SINGLES MARK BROKEN

[illegible] of the tourney [illegible] fittingly labeled [illegible] Night. North Quincy faces a stern task in the boys' division especially after the fine rolling of the Be[illegible] High pinsters.

[illegible] finished [illegible]

The bowling [illegible] are beginning [illegible] as the [illegible] into each day.

Eddie Munsey of 77 Brighton avenue, Allston, a leading light of the Commonwealth Recreation alleys, came through in striking fashion with a new high mark of 354 in the men's singles, outdistancing Hugh Bradley of Lynn with his previous high of 344.

A new women's doubles high was established by Mrs. Nicholas F. Thornton and Mrs. Marjorie Reynolds, women's champions at Worcester County [illegible] Worcester [illegible] Mrs. Thornton 274 and Mrs. Reynolds [illegible]

Eddie Morrissey, manager of the [illegible] Downs alleys, who is leading the North Quincy schoolboy delegation to the wars today, turned in a real serious bid for all-events with 345 in the men's team competition and 337 in the doubles, the latter when paired with Van [illegible]

The Rotary Club, with its huge entry of 16 teams, saw its Team A composed of Ed Beckwith, Carl Parker, Dick Halliday, Vin Larkin, and Bernie Martin come up to second place with a score of [illegible] Parker's 35[illegible] composed of [illegible]-106 added the cause greatly.

The Rotarians trail Joe Grant's Eagle Alleys All-Stars, who took over team command on Tuesday with a high of 1540.

Time Trials Today For Tech Oarsmen

M. I. T. oarsmen are set for a time trial this afternoon with the varsity and junior varsity eights scheduled to go over the mile and three-quarters course in a brush upstream.

Technology's armada watched the Harvard varsity eights go over the course under Tom Bolles, and would like to match their speed against that of the Crimson which, [illegible] orders [illegible] rowed to a very [illegible]

Buddy Rogers Offered RKO Role

Los Angeles, April 1—Years ago, when Jesse Lasky was at the head of Paramount, he selected for stardom a dark-eyed youngster from the Paramount school. That young actor was Buddy Rogers and now it seems Buddy may return to the Lasky fold at RKO.

In any event, when Mary Pickford's prospective bridegroom breezes into town he will be invited to the RKO studios for a conference with Lasky to discuss an important role in "Radio City Revels."

Louella O. Parsons

Seems as if Jesse is becoming RKO's musical impresario. Not only has he Nino Martini under his wing but he will also produce the next Lily Pons picture. [illegible] watch the [illegible] Martini's [illegible] described a new type of [illegible] April [illegible] The Musical [illegible]

AT GARDEN

Jim[illegible] Sarandos, youthful Greek giant who is unbeaten in more than 1[illegible]0 matches since he arrived in America nearly a year ago, will meet George (Wildcat) Wilson, former University of Washington football star, in the semi-final bout of the wrestling program at Boston Garden next Friday night, Promoter Paul Bowser announces.

[illegible] Johnson, [illegible] Swede who has been knocking off his foes in quick time, will take on [illegible] Dusek [illegible] pounder in the main event.

Wilson should be the most severe test Sarandos has had here. He has been wrestling several years and is considered one of the smartest and cleverest of the heavyweights.

Johnson has established training quarters here and will work harder for this contest than for any he has had here. He realizes it is the toughest assignment Bowser has given him.

[A columnist's wearied Uncle Tom writes his Simon Legree—who probably won't answer anyway, because The Holland never does anything that's expected of him, even at St. Elizabeth's Hosp.]

GEORGE HOLLAND

What are these mysterious letters to you from Jake Wilk of Warner Bros. story dept.? . . . One says: "Any news on 'The Fancy Kid?' Would appreciate hearing from you" . . . A later one asks: "What is the last in connection with the story, 'The Fancy Kid?' " . . . Why don't you answer the guy? . . . And have you written another picture? . . . Or do they have to drag it out of you . . . Like "Don't Tell the Wife?" . . .

Mayoralty Race Tips:

The tip is out that Owen Gallagher resigned yesterday as street commissioner in Mayor Mansfield's cabinet so that he can come out in the open as a supporter of District Attorney Bill Foley for mayor . . . And the insiders say that Governor Hurley, who is not unfriendly to the Foley candidacy, will appoint Gallagher district attorney for the remainder of Foley's term in the event Bill lands the mayoralty prize.

Who sent you the songcopy of "Poor Butterfly" . . . Frank Daley of Southie? . . . Speaking of Southie, the date on which Bill Foley will make his mayoralty announcement is April 29th . . . At the South Boston Democratic Club dinner . . . U. S. Atty. Frank Ford canoes home from his Bermuda vacation a week from today . . .

Reception or Marathon:

You've received an invite to the annual Jim Curley reception by the Tammany Club at the Bradford, April 19th . . . Or will you be all in after running the Marathon? . . . You'd look good, limping in the grand march, which starts at 9 . . . The party to Senator Jimmy Hennigan last night at Egleston Sq. Stadium was a hummer . . . Your limping hosp. mate, Johnny Mack, was there, helping Gert. Dolan, the Roxbury better dance teacher, put her starlets through paces as the party show feature . . .

Myles McSweeney, the tablad, threatens suit for a tenner . . . claims you [illegible] injured his reputation among tosspots, who all finger him with scorn as a teetotaler . . . Beautiful Helen [illegible], swell singer whose lost leg didn't take her courage, has had a song dedicated to her, "Dream Waltz," by Myron Burnes and A. Sherman . . . It will be in the West End House show April [illegible] . . . Helen has [illegible] in a number of previous W. E. H. times . . .

Stooges' Run of the Mill:

Today your Stooges are acknowledging wires, cards, letters, duns, etc., from the following: Eddie and Marie Lewis . . . Mrs. William J. Prendergast of Jefferson . . . Pete Dooley of Div. 16 stables . . . Jimmy O'Keefe and "Etch" Cohen (there's a team) . . . Charles L. Curran . . . Mary, Peg and Kay Corbett . . . Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Murdock . . . Ellis and Prunella Hult . . . Lieut. Mitchell . . . Russell Howard . . . Annette Reed (with Roly Rogers in the Blue Room) . . . Jack Hawker . . . Lou Irwin, the N. Y. theatrical agent . . . Bob Epstein . . . Many more to come . . .

New Boy-Meets-Girl Gag:

"Don't tell the wife," but a couple of the lads have discovered a new [illegible] . . . The dolls of a big industrial plant across the [illegible] downtown hotel have binoculars . . . When a [illegible] seems lonesome comes to the window of his hotel room [illegible] attract his attention . . . What is more natural than [illegible] his room number on the window with a finger . . . The [illegible] pick it out . . . And soon his room phone rings . . .

Judge [illegible], the former rep., has certainly snapped [illegible] Chelsea [illegible] he was made presiding justice did the judges [illegible] And court now opens at 9 a. m. sharp, with all judges [illegible] . . . No more hanging around and wasting time . . . [illegible] Blaney, helmsman in the police supers' office long before the beloved Mike Crowley's death, picking up again at City Hosp. . . . He was plenty along.

Your Old Pals Can Talk:

Your old pal Garson Kanin, sends you condolences from Wash via Fred Finklehoffe, author of "Brother Rat" . . . Gar opened his first play "Hitch Your Wagon," in the capital Monday night . . . Say he'll climb on it with you . . .

Where'd you put that London letter from Ben Lyon and Bebe Daniels? . . . You're a fine snooper . . . Right in your own hospital a baby daughter arrived Monday for the Joe McKenneys . . . He's the old B. C. gridiron coach, now Boston schools physical education director . . .

Lou Frey, of the Winchester st. Freys, has taken over Shea's Theater in [illegible] Falls, R. I., and the Hope Theater in Hope Valley, R. I. . . . Art Roche, who has been Warner salesman in New Haven, promoted from Yaletown to Boston exchange . . .

Loew's Holds 'Maytime' Over

Metro's "Maytime," co-starring Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy, is proving another smash-hit for Robert Z. Leonard and Hunt Stromberg, director-producer team responsible for "The Great Ziegfeld." It is being held over for a second week at Loew's State and Orpheum Theatres.

"Maytime" is a resplendent and melodious spectacle that moves majestically through two and a half hours of romance, melodrama and operatic arias. It has splendid script, lavish settings, flawless acting and singing, grand photography and [illegible] versatile direction.

You won't find much of Rida Johnson Young's "Maytime" in the film. And "Sweetheart, Will You Remember?" is all that has been retained from Sigmund Romberg's score. Nevertheless and notwithstanding, the Hollywood changes have been all to the good.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

A Nationwide Organization Devoted To American Youth in Aviation

By L. F. ROSS
Boston Wing Commander

With scores of Boston school pupils and students joining the Junior Birdmen through the aid of their teachers, principals and manual training instructors, new flight squadrons are being formed in preparation for spring and summer activities.

The new surge of air-minded boys and girls into the organization is due to the distribution of new Junior Birdmen folders, new Eagle test sheets, membership coupons and other materials, explaining the purposes and program of the Junior Birdmen in New England.

Pupils and students in Boston's [illegible] schools can now ask their teachers about all phases of the Junior Birdmen organization and get correct information on how to [illegible] how to start building model [illegible] how to take part in contests, how to form flight squadrons and other features.

The teachers, manual training instructors and principals will be glad to supply this information if it is requested. All inquiries should be made during recess and at other periods when regular classes are not in session.

If you are a pupil 10 years or older or a student in high school and want to know anything about the Junior Birdmen, ask your teacher.

One of the latest squadrons to be formed by pupils is the Flying Victors of Frank V. Thompson school, Maxwell and Seaden streets, Dorchester Center.

This group is sponsored by Miss Elizabeth A. Burns, geography and history teacher of Room 215-8H, one of the many teachers who are helping their air-minded boys and girls to get a foothold in junior aeronautics.

Walter L. Peterson, 10, of 35 Warren avenue, Hyde Park; John Cunningham, 14, of 22 Leroy street, Dorchester; Francis J. Hawkins, 11, of 67 School street, Charlestown; Hary Rowen, 11, of 26 Lake street, Brighton, and Walter E. Kerwin, 12, of 27 Elizabeth street, Mattapan.

Sidney Freeman, 11, of 9 Middleton street, Boston; Edward Faretra, 14, of 460 Saratoga street, East Boston; Max Fishman, 10, of 4[illegible]2 Norfolk street, Dorchester; Marshall Sheer, 11, of 46 Claymoss road, Brighton, and Robert Caro, 10, of 1634 Commonwealth avenue, Brighton.

Rocky Nigohosian, 12, of 46 Stellman road, Roslindale; James McCarthy, 10, of 14 Edgerly road, Boston; Victoria Mastrangelo, 18, of 278 Chelsea street, East Boston; Edward Sutton, 10, of 35 Cambridge street, Charlestown; John Hammond, 11, of 3 Austin street, Boston; Leonard MacVicar, 13, of 261 Adams street, Dorchester and Arnold Soilosy, 12, of 250 Lexington street, East Boston.

Herbert Stern, 10, of 38 Fessenden street, Boston; John Mc[illegible] 1[illegible] of 23 B[illegible] street, Dorchester; Melvin Cohen, 11, of 7 Bassam street, Dorchester; Jack Morse, 12, of 10 La[illegible] avenue, Roxbury; Carmen La[illegible], 13, of 66 Frankfort street, East Boston, and Bernice R. Goldman, 10, of 10 Abbot street, Dorchester.

WOOL Shrinkage STUDIED

U. S. STANDARD PROPOSED

Washington, April 1 (AP) — Representative Paul R. Greever of Cody, Wyo., proposed today the Agricultural Department conduct investigations to establish a government standard by which wool shrinkage would be estimated.

Greever said he seeks protection of wool producers who often suffer severe losses through erratic methods of shrinkage estimates" made by wool buyers who pay clean wool market prices after the shrinkage estimate has been deducted.

Greever and Representative Clarence [illegible] South of Coleman, Tex. asked a House appropriations subcommittee to provide a $[illegible] fund to enable the Bureau of Agricultural Economics to conduct the study over a period of years.

W[illegible] Greever said [illegible] a practice of purchasing w[illegible] from [illegible] of the [illegible] and [illegible] clean wool on the Easter market."

Often Loses Out

"The producer often loses out in the estimate of shrinkage placed upon the wool by the buyer," Greever told the committee. "The difference between the actual shrinkage before it is cleaned and the estimate shrinkage has often been to the detriment of the producer."

Greever said the appropriation [illegible] for studies to determine the actual shrinkage of wool [illegible] basis [illegible] samples [illegible] several years of [illegible].

He [illegible] received [illegible] marketing research "while wool has been almost ignored in spite of the fact that the estimated revenue from the sheep business in the United States amounts to approximately $350,000,000 yearly."

HANEY ON FINANCES

Banks Now Loaded WITH "OBLIGATIONS" Of U. S. Government

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, New York University

New York, April 1 The situation in government finances and the government bond market is one that every citizen should endeavor to understand

At the outset, it should be noted that the banks have a very small amount of loans outstanding. Especially should it be noted that their loans are only about 60 per cent of demand deposits.

Rarely if ever have bank deposits piled up this way while business loans have been so low In a sound commercial bank loans usually expand with deposits, because the loans are mostly made to business men who deposit their notes, with or without security, in return.

The plain fact is that the bulk of the huge mass of "deposits" shown in the bank statements is not based upon any productive use of funds by business men. It is based upon the borrowing and spending of the government for political purposes. The government has borrowed, putting up its promises to pay as security with the banks. Its spending of borrowed funds have then given rise to the great mass of deposits now in the banks.

Of course, the government promises referred to are its bonds with notes. As a result, we find the reporting member banks loaded up with over 9.9 billion dollars of "government obligations" which are carried as "investments."

And the sum of the small "loans" and the huge "investments is actually 8 per cent larger than the total of all demand, time and government deposits!

Now, under the circumstances, it is a great problem to know how business can expand without serious credit difficulties. Ordinarily, business expands only with the aid of much borrowing from banks. But now the banks are so loaded with "investments" in government securities that they are hampered in increasing business "loans"

One obvious course is to sell the government obligations and thus get reserves for business loans And the banks have been trying this Business loans have gained about 899 million dollars in the past year. The banks have now begun to unload "governments," as is shown by the sale of 140 million dollars worth last week and a reduction of 223 million dollars in "governments" since a year ago

To be sure, the sale of "governments" last week may have been immediately chargeable to withdrawals of deposits by income taxpayers and by the government. But, broadly considered, we may say that as business loans rise, investments in "governments will tend to fall.

What should the administration do in such a situation? It should do at least two things: (1) Balance the budget, and (2) allow interest rates to take their course. By these means, it could get funds with which to buy and retire its debt. At the same time, it would let the yield on the bonds rise to a level which would attract individual investors.

This is the only sound course.

But what is being done? The administration is supporting its own obligations in several ways. (1) It is buying them, not for retirement but as "investments," using postoffice and federal deposit insurance funds for the purpose. (2) It makes the Federal Reserve banks (which are just "an arm of the government," as Mr. Eccles says) buy its bonds—42 million dollars' worth last week. (3) It keeps money rates down. (4) It marks up the "reserve requirements," thus merely compelling member banks to keep a large part of their deposits in the federal-controlled reserve banks.

All of which is headed toward more "open market operations" and more of the artificial "easy money policy."

Already the idle funds of the postoffice, etc., appear to have been nearly used up. The Reserve banks may soon reach the limits of shifting out of government "bills" and "notes" into government "bonds."

One sure thing is that as prices rise, business loans expand and money rates tend to advance, many banks will continue to reduce their investments in government bonds and the market for such "obligations" will take a lot of "supporting" by that great debtor, "the government."

REPORTS of 'Van' SALE

NO COMMENT FROM BALL

Cleveland, April 1 (AP) —Persistent reports that the rail and allied empire of the late Van Sweringen brothers was about to pass into new hands found no comment today from George A. Ball, Muncie, Ind., manufacturer who controls the vast holdings.

A source close to the glass jar millionaire said in New York that Ball planned to sell his nearly exclusive equity in the $3,000,000,000 empire and devote the estimated $10,000,000 gross profit to charity.

Ball, who with other members of his family has devoted millions of dollars to such use, was registered at a Cleveland hotel, but could not be reached for comment.

Frank Bernard, a close associate of the Indiana manufacturer and president of the Merchants National Bank at Muncie, said when informed of the latest reports:

"You're telling me something. I would guess, though, that the reports are premature If anyone is close to the mind of George Ball, I'd like to meet him"

In New York it was [illegible] the four or five groups h[illegible]

[illegible]

"Public interest demands that the Interstate Commerce Commission pass upon any such transfer," declared Wheeler, whose committee has devoted months of study to the 21,000-mile rail system.

"If its approval is not obtained," the senator asserted "our committee certainly will investigate every angle of the transaction." Ball was a witness before the Wheeler committee early this year.

The Indiana manufacturer and G. A. Tomlinson, Cleveland shipping magnate, bought control of the holdings for somewhat more than $3,000,000 late in 1935 at an auction conducted by a New York banking group headed by J. P Morgan & Co. holders of the collateral.

The Midamerica Corporation was formed as a top holding company and Ball later bought much of Tomlinson's minority interest until he [illegible] of the [illegible] hands of the bankers through a $48,000,000 loan default

New York reports said the transaction is awaiting both legal and tax adjustments Ball's reported [illegible] charity likewise were understood to depend on settlement of legal and tax problem

WHAT ABOUT YOUR WILL?

EVERYONE who owns property should make a will. You may have made yours already. If so, you naturally want it to conform to your wishes today.

If you have made a will, we strongly urge you to re-read it today. Then ask yourself these questions:

1. If your estate has decreased in value, what effect will the specific bequests you have made in your will have on the residue?
2. Does your will provide for persons no longer living?
3. Does your will fail to name children or others whom you now wish to provide for?
4. Does your will create a Trust for the protection of those who would be benefited by such provision?
5. Is there any reason to change the Executor whom you have named in your will?

Your family lawyer can help you in answering these questions, for he can tell you whether your will properly fits conditions as they are today and he can also show you how to make any changes you may desire, either by the addition of a codicil to your present will or by a clause in a new will, if one is necessary.

If you have not yet made a will or if you are contemplating the revision of a will drawn in the past, there is information in our booklet, "WILLS AND TRUSTS," which you may find of distinct value. A copy will be sent promptly upon request.

BUSINESS ACTIVITY

Bay State TRADE SHOWS Increases

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

General business activity in New England was slightly better in February than it was in the preceding month according to the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston monthly review released today.

Almost every index showed an increase. The exceptions were consumption of raw wool and the value of construction contracts, both of which showed a slight decline.

The figures on employment, and payrolls, taken from the state labor department report, are distinctly encouraging. The total of wage earners in Massachusetts during the month was 14 per cent higher than in January and weekly aggregate payrolls were 2.1 per cent larger. February department store sales lifted 6 per cent over the same month a year previous. Cotton consumption showed up extremely well with a daily average figure of 4240 bales, the best figure for any February since 1930. For the first two months of the year cotton consumption ran 25.7 per cent ahead of the initial months of 1936.

An analysis of comments on the bond market coming to this writer clearly indicates that shrewd observers are taking a bullish view of the outlook. In fact, many are expecting a substantial recovery before very long. While such opinions are in themselves important we think the vigorous manner in which most of these observers deny that a prolonger decline has begun is of prime importance. A rally after the unexpectedly severe decline is a natural development and it requires little expert knowledge to forecast it. It is the assurance of capable observers that an upturn now will not simply be an interlude in a long term down trend that supplies the real encouragement.

Notebook: The rumor mill is working overtime insofar as the Boston & Maine is concerned... First come the stories that Delaware & Hudson might buy into the road...A natural rumor because of the substantial amount of traffic it receives from the Boston &Maine...Then there is talk to the effect that when New Haven comes out of receivership the two New England rails will be a merger...In the year ended March 31 Bulova Watch is estimated to have earned around $9 per share...And of this amount about $1.50 was due to profits on gold and foreign exchange in connection with the devaluation of the Swiss and French currencies.

The stock market is not lending itself to easy analysis from a technical angle. The small volume on both the up and downside is confusing. The chances are a definite stalemate exists that can only be broken by a batch of fresh news. Business is good and earnings are up. But everyone is aware of both. It is almost as though the situation has been talked over so much that good news has lost its potency. The rails do not act well, yet on the restricted volume of trading, it would be hazardous to draw definite conclusions. Some measure of reaction in here is anticipated and is entirely possible it will throw some real light on the technical market situation.

So. N. E. Telephone Stations Gain

Southern New England Telephone Co. reports that 322,342 telephone stations were in service March 1, a gain of 1440 in February and an increase of 2797 for the first two months this year. The total is the largest since March, 1932.

The company handled 1,731,102 toll calls in January this year, a gain of 8.8 per cent, over January, 1936. In February 1,569,475 calls were handled, compared with 1,473,065 a year ago when the month was composed of 29 days.

Calls Bonds

Crucible Steel Co. of America has called for redemption May 1, $1,000,000 of 5 per cent debentures of 1940. There were $5,500,000 of these debentures outstanding December 31, 1936.

STOCK Prices Work LOWER

U. S. STEEL IN NARROW RANGE

New York, April 1—The stock market resumed its downtrend today on a fairly broad front, as sentiment was adversely affected by the prospect of a coal miners' strike. Losses ran to more than a point in many instances.

Steels, coppers, rails, motors and rubbers were among the weaker groups. Oils and utilities resisted selling to some extent.

U. S. Steel settled into a narrow trading range around 120. Bethlehem and Republic also were off about a point from last night's final levels.

Coppers lost up to a point under profit taking. Anaconda, Cerro De Pasco and American Smelting were particularly soft.

Baltimore & Ohio and N. Y. Central each dropped a point before meeting support, but losses elsewhere in the group were of small proportions.

Chrysler and General Motors slipped fractionally, while Auburn gained about a point. Rubber losses ran to a point in U. S. Rubber and almost as much in Firestone.

International Paper preferred rose 2½ points at one time. Celanese and Industrial Rayon were moderately improved.

Bonds were generally easier, governments slipped irregularly. Grains lost as much as a cent a bushel. Cotton was slightly higher.

Current Topics

Study was given to estimates of the American Iron & Steel Institute which disclosed costs of manufacturing steel have been increased at the rate of nearly $215,000,000 annually by wage advances and soaring prices of many raw materials.

The total, it was said, exceeds by $15,000,000 the expected gain of $200,000,000 in yearly gross revenues of the industry thought likely from the recent boosts in steel charges. Some observers disagreed with the institute's figures.

Interesting to holders of the oils were forecasts gasoline consumption this year will exceed that of 1936 by 10 to 12 per cent. This, it was pointed out, would account for the apparent lack of concern over the 83,000,000 barrels of gasoline now on hand and the steady upturn in crude production.

Sterling and the French franc were down slightly at the beginning of foreign exchange transactions, the former at 4.89 7-16 and the latter at 4.60¾ cents.

Ticker Lateness Meter Perfected

New York Quotation Co., subsidiary of the New York Stock Exchange, is offering subscribers a ticker delay meter which, by means of an electrically-wired indicator, shows the average lateness of the stock tape at a given time.

While comparatively few meters have been installed as yet, there have been frequent requests for such a service.

Information regarding the lateness of the stock tape has been given out by the quotation department of the New York Stock Exchange and is available on the exchange floor.

Wall Street Hears

New York, April 1 (INS)—That Gillette Safety Razor (GIL) will show earnings of better than 45 cents a share for its initial quarter.

One Agency Urged for Transport Industry

Washington, April 1 (AP)—Chairman Carroll Miller of the Interstate Commerce Commission urged today that all interstate transportation regulation be placed under one agency.

Speaking in commemoration of the completion of the commission's fifty years of service, Miller said:

"I think it is safe to say that financially the condition of the transportation industry is not so good as that of industry as a whole.

"Orderly regulation of all these carriers by one body should go far toward solving some of their problems, with the result that their financial situation should improve.

"If the water and air carrier bills now pending in Congress are enacted," he added, "our duties will be much greater, necessitating large increases in our personnel, and the additional office space required will probably be nearly as much again as in our present office building."

100 P. C. Stock Melon for Mullins

Stockholders of Mullins Manufacturing Corp. at adjourned annual meeting scheduled for April 27 will be asked to approve an increase in authorized Class B common stock to 560,000 shares from 172,550 shares, of which 164,989 shares are outstanding.

Of the increased shares, it is the intention to pay a 100 per cent stock dividend to Class B shareholders, according to Andrew McLeod, secretary-treasurer.

Bar Silver

London, April 1 (AP)—Bar silver easier, 1-16 lower at 20⅞d. Sterling price equivalent to 45.98 cents.

Comments of Brokers

Our view of the market remains the same. It is that while the bond market continues heavy, indicating lack of pressure of funds for investment, no broad general appreciation in the value of stocks as a whole is likely.—G. M.—P. Murphy & Co.

We repeat that subject to profit taking recessions, the present upturn should last a week or ten days, with the general level of prices approaching the high levels recorded earlier in the month, before meeting with resistance of any consequence.—J. E. Malloy—Hornblower & Weeks.

The outlook for the market is for steadiness, with probably a slow continuation of the advance in second-grade rails, all, of course, subject to the depressive effect of further labor troubles.—F. H. Richardson—Smithgate & Co.

I believe that the rally in stocks (which has now retraced just about half the March decline) is completed. The next move should be downward, barring only the intervention of some extremely favorable news development of a general nature.—H. D. Comer—Paine, Webber & Co.

It would, therefore, seem desirable that during this market testing period that appears to lie just ahead an open-minded attitude be maintained in daily trading activities.—J. S. Bache & Co.

Shipbuilding More Active

On March 1 American shipyards were building or had under contract to build for private shipowners, exclusive of vessels previously launched, 273 vessels aggregating 281,302 gross tons, department of commerce reported.

This is an increase from the 225 vessels aggregating 236,678 gross tons under construction on February 1.

INCREASE IN WAGES FACTOR

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

Copyright, 1937, Universal Service

New York, April 1—The fundamental impulse toward recovery in March was sufficient to prove the determining factor in the business situation, despite contemporary worries about sit-downs, changes in our form of government, and the prospects of a foreign war.

With industrial prices and costs rising sharply in response to wage increases and other factors, it is a fortuitous circumstance that farm prices are climbing in harmony.

Otherwise, the existing parity of farm-industrial incomes would be destroyed, with a deleterious effect on the volume of trade and employment.

The downswing in high grade bond prices since the recovery peak has caused widespread discussion of the outlook for long term interest rates.

Until the federal budget is balanced and the need for continuous deficit financing is over, Washington authorities are unlikely to be willing to slacken their artificial effort to keep interest rates low.

Nevertheless, the conviction is growing that the bottom in interest rates has been passed, and that in the future the trend, even if slow and almost imperceptible, may be toward moderately higher levels.

With the wholesale manufacturing of bank credit to meet the Treasury requirements, the situation in respect to actual savings, that is, production of goods remaining unconsumed and available for use in future production, has been beclouded.

The truth is that, with the striking rise in the tax burden, especially on substantial incomes and inheritances, an increasing share of the nation's savings is being diverted to the government.

This means that such surplus is likely to be used increasingly for such projects as roads and for social schemes, which, however desirable they may appear to be, will be unrelated to production goods—that is, plant and machinery, used to accelerate future production.

In view of this trend, analytical observers are wondering to what extent the supply of capital, or savings, may become relatively scarce in relation to the potential demand, and to what extent this changing relationship will be reflected in interest rates.

Managers of the investment portfolios of universities and of philanthropic institutions are reluctant to become traders in high-grade bonds.

Even though they may have a hunch that lower prices for such prime issues may be in sight two years hence, they are disinclined to take profits now and keep funds idle or invested at an infinitesimally low return in prime short-term issues. Their institutions are sorely in need of current income from investments.

Where such policies prevail, there is a disposition to look to the ultimate safety of investments rather than to market fluctuations.

Institutions, with demand deposits, however, are less disposed to ignore interim fluctuations in market price, and that is why through the years the best managed banks tended to prefer issues running five years or less for their bond portfolios.

Even those who concede the possibility of some mild stiffening of interest rates in the coming period doubt that money rates will become a dominant stock market factor in the near future.

Current forward buying of merchandise reflects in part the speculative belief that higher commodity prices are ahead and, in part, the fear that strikes might interrupt the flow of merchandise. Accordingly, inventories have expanded proportionately to sales.

There will be no major inventory problem until such time as sales should drop substantially below current expectations.

Raw Wool Up

Consumption of raw wool, scoured basis, in apparel class in Feburary had a weekly average of 6,430,000 pounds, against 5,763,000 in January, Department of Commerce reports.

B. C. FORBES:

Worker SAYS MEN IN 2 Classes

By B. C. FORBES

This is the gist of a talk I heard a factory worker make this week:

"The workers in this country can be divided into two classes: Those who like to work, who are interested in their work, who take pride in their work, who are satisfied with their working conditions and their wages and their treatment, and who feel that good work sooner or later gets recognition.

"The other class are the complainers. They don't love their work. They want to do the least possible amount of work. They are never content, no matter how well they are treated. They feel that the world owes them a living no matter how little effort they put forth to really earn a living. They love to stir up trouble wherever they are. They want something for nothing—they want a lot for nothing. They want to get big pay for working only a few hours, the fewer the better.

"There is a clash on just now between these two kinds of workers.

"The future of this country depends on which class wins."

STRUGGLE FOR JOB

He went on to relate how he came to this country as a youthful immigrant, knowing little English, how he had to struggle to get any kind of a job, but how, after getting his foot on the work ladder, he had found it possible to make progress in the nature of the work he did and in pay.

Having first-hand knowledge of how workers fare in other countries, he is convinced that well-paid workers here do not know how fortunate they are. He is amazed that agitators have been able to stir up so much trouble.

Later, I asked him whether he thought the "complainers" would become the dominant group. He is hopeful that they will not. In his judgment, the right kind of workers greatly outnumbered the other kind; only, the malcontents are much more vociferous than the honest-to-goodness wage earners who show up regularly, do their work well, and live tranquil, domestic lives.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

The statement issued by President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, contains food for thought among trouble raisers.

Briefly, he warns that "temporary advantages gained through sit-down strikes will inevitably lead to permanent injury. The public generally will not long tolerate the illegal seizure of property. If persisted in, it will, through state and federal lawmaking bodies, force the enactment of legislation providing for compulsory arbitration, the incorporation of unions and other repressive forms of legislation which will deprive organized labor of freedom of association and liberty of action within the limitations of both moral and statutory law. Such action would be a severe blow to labor . . . Labor runs the risk of losing more than can be gained by engaging in sit-down strikes.

"I therefore publicly warn labor against this illegal procedure. Both personally and officially I disavow the sit-down strike as a part of the economic and organization policy of the American Federation of Labor."

PUBLIC OPINION

The writer of this column recently made this prediction: "The public will become tired of sit-down strikes; the authorities will restore enforcement of law and order, and labor leaders will find it advisable to bring their tactics more into line with popular opinion."

It remains to be seen how much or how little influence Mr. Green's counsel will have.

This writer feels more strongly than ever before that public opinion is already turning against sit-down strikes and those who instigate them.

Private advices from Washington intimate that President Roosevelt has been made uncomfortable by repeated reports that he is in entire sympathy with sit-down strikers and totally opposed to setting in motion the machinery of the law against usurpers of private property. But it is hinted that he has delayed taking a public stand until he can obtain a more definite line on how public opinion is generating.

John L. Lewis having been easily the largest contributor to his presidential campaign fund, and having done his utmost otherwise to round up votes for Mr. Roosevelt, the latter, it is pointed out, finds himself in a delicate position when Lewis followers disobey the courts.

The outcome of the current labor ferment is anybody's guess. For my part, I feel fairly confident that it will subside and that more peaceful conditions will appear.

Around the World in 11 Years

The Boston Evening American presents herewith the 12th chapter of "Around the World in Eleven Years," the amazing best-seller book by the famous Abbe children. Patience, Richard and Johnny Abbe have collaborated in writing one of the most remarkable of travel stories—their experiences (they are still children)—and impressions of life in France, Austria, Germany, Russia, England and the United States. The little authors were born in France of American parents, James E., and Polly Platt Abbe. The story will continue daily in the American and Advertiser.

By PATIENCE, RICHARD and JOHN ABBE

CHAPTER XII

When we went back to Moscow from the datcha Aunt Joady and Uncle Stan Richardson took us up in their car. The people we knew with the big car were busy. They lived in the National Hotel in the best rooms in the hotel, because they were Americans and rich and were making gas for the war.

In Moscow we met Julian Bryant and we called him Baron Munchausen because he was always telling lies. He was a very funny man and was always telling us stories, even though they were lies.

He told us a story about a girl who wouldn't eat her soup, and she got so thin they had to put her in a book, and then they forgot the name of the book so they never found her.

Big Man, Big Coat

Then he told us he would take us up on the hundredth etage (floor) of the Empire State building and we could throw our underwear over and it would turn into stone when it hit the ground. We don't believe that. Of course not. But he was a funny man. Baron Munchausen took movie pictures of us and we had a lovely time with him.

There was a big man with a big coat made out of a camel. He said his name was Alexander Woollcott. He is a very nice and smart man. He loves children. He gave us some oranges, and said, "So this is Polly Platt, your Mamma. She's just as lovely as she ever was." We told him Mamma used to be an actress, and she could still be one but she wants to stay with us, so she isn't.

We met Walter Duranty who has always been a friend of Mamma's. He was laughing and said he remembered when he first met Mamma in the Adlon Hotel in Berlin and he could never forget her hunting boots because most people don't wear hunting boots with a Paris hat and a fur coat.

Maurice Hindus was a nice man with real blue eyes and very curly hair. He was always giving his clothes away to the peasants.

Colonel Pope was also nice. He had a bald head, like papa's, and had Chinese slippers and lots of Chinese things from China. He gave a party for the aviators who came from New York to Berlin without stopping, and then they fell down in Russia, and then he gave them a party. One boy had a hole in his head.

The English ambassador's daughter was pretty. She spoke French and Russian and English and Spanish. Her governess was Mexican. She was kind of afraid of things because she didn't go out much.

Mme. Stalin Funeral

Then Madame Stalin died and we wanted to see her funeral. Aunt Betty came with us with her dog. When we got to the street by the Red Square there were thousands of people, and the soldiers on horseback wouldn't let us go.

Mamma made believe she could only speak English. She knows French and German, though. Then she said, "New Moscow Hotel," and kept pointing and making out she was mad and said, "Children, New Moscow Hotel, children have to go to New Moscow Hotel."

Then the soldiers let us through with the dog and we walked across Red Square just as Madame Stalin was coming in the box and Stalin was walking on the street behind it with his children.

Stalin is a big strong man, but he looked very sad behind the box. He wears a soldier's cap on his head and has a mustache. He doesn't look as though he would hurt children. He is also handsome.

Aunt Joady looks just like me, Patience. Uncle Stan is very dark and handsome and young. He loves Aunt Joady. Mamma says because Aunt Joady looks like me, Patience, maybe someday she will have a child who will look like Mamma.

Podolsky was a nice man. He was in the government.

Sell Our Clothes

While Henrietta Burnham was living with us we got very poor. Then Mamma started to sell our clothes and Henrietta put her clothes in too and went out to get the customers.

Nobody would buy Papa's clothes because they were in rags.

Henrietta used to sleep on our couch, but her legs were too long, so we put a chair under her feet. The lady in the hotel had a fight with Mamma because she said we had Henrietta in our room and she was not supposed to be there.

Mamma said, "If you come in and search our room I'll tell Stalin," so they didn't come in, and so Henrietta stayed with us. Henrietta was very handsome. She looked like an Indian. She was having trouble with the government, so that's why she lived with us.

We sold every bit of our clothes and Mamma only had a Scotch skirt and a sweater to wear out. A lady came and said, "Sell me that sweater and I will give you gold for it." But Mamma said, "This is all I have." Then the lady said, "Well, sell me the collar off your sweater," so Mamma let her cut it off her sweater. The lady gave Mamma two dollars.

We had another dollar and Patience gave it to a Russian boy in exchange for a kopek. Mamma ran all over the hotel looking for the boy, but he never was found. Mamma nearly almost cried because she said a dollar was a lot of moey to us then. Papa laughed real hard and Mamma said she'd hit him dead if he didn't stop, and then Henrietta laughed and we laughed and then Mamma laughed and we all got hysterical.

Then Mamma had three carrots and a lot of black bread crusts. So she made some soup on our little iron, and when we ate it we got drunk because it was exactly like warm beer. Johnny ate three plates of it and started laughing and talking.

We didn't have milk all the time we were in Moscow and Johnny was always asking for milk.

We went to school in Moscow, but they put Johnny out because he was too young. He was five years old only, and you had to be six. Papa said Johnny was the only boy in the world to be expelled from school at five years old.

We didn't do much work in that school. We just used to draw. We used to go to that school in a trolley car and it took one hour because there were so many other trolley-cars on the tracks.

We used to get nearly killed on those trolley-cars, and when we got off trucks used to then nearly kill us.

We learned three songs in that school. The "Internationale" and these two.

Capitalism is falling down,
Falling down, falling down,
Capitalism is falling down,
So says Lenin.

Communism is going up,
Going up, going up,
Communism is going up,
So says Stalin.

One, two, three, Pioneers are we,
We join the Proletariat and fight the Bourgeoisie.
Four, five, six, happy Bolsheviks,
We go on demonstrations and fight the big fat dicks.

Th children in that school were Americans. They said they were Communists. They were poor too. The teacher said we must all be Communists and good ones.

X-9 EGG HUNT IN NEWS REELS

Hearst Metro news reel, just released, is showing movies of the fourth annual Boston American-Sunday Advertiser Secret Agent X-9 Egg Hunt held at the Playstead, Franklin Park, Easter Saturday.

Twenty-five thousand youthful detectives participated in this annual event. One thousand and two eggs were hidden with 1002 prizes being awarded. The finder of the golden egg was awarded a check for $15, he being a six-year-old Saugus youth.

A Jamaica Plain girl found the silver egg and received $10. The other children were awarded Roller Skates, G-Men Finger Print sets, also Ping Pong sets.

MONEY TO LOAN

Necessities of Life . . .

Every New England family must spend substantial sums for the necessities of life. When savings have been drained by sickness or trouble, the Shawmut Monthly Payment Plan helps responsible people with regular income to borrow in one sum to meet this problem. Available to Boston and nearby communities, responsible persons may now borrow on this plan at a lower cost than ever before, with systematic repayment over an extended period. You need not be a depositor to use this service, available at our main office and at our sixteen Shawmut branches.

An Exposition Year For All America

TWO GREAT international expositions will be held in the United States in 1939.

They should be, not competing projects, but one complete AMERICAN ENTERPRISE.

There is ample room in America for both, and ample reason for the most friendly co-operation between their promoters.

In New York City, the World's Fair of 1939 will utilize all the resources of science, education and industry to portray "The World of Tomorrow."

In San Francisco, the Golden Gate International Exposition will hail one of the greatest engineering triumphs of human history, the double bridging of San Francisco Bay.

Between these two cities lie ALL OF AMERICA, to be traversed and APPRECIATED by the millions who will travel from one end of the country to the other.

The nation itself will thus be ONE VAST EXPOSITION.

MILLIONS of Americans will SEE AMERICA for the first time.

Visitors from every nation of the world will see, not one city or one section of America, but the entire nation.

The world will be welcomed to the opposite ends of America, and will witness all the marvels of the American scene en route.

At the other extreme, San Francisco, the wonderful western "City of Seven Hills"—the splendid port into which pour the Argosies of the East—San Francisco with its Golden Gate, famed in song and story—with its marvelous created island in the middle of its beautiful bay, where the exposition is already lifting the glory of its golden domes.

And in between, the whole inspiration of the CONTINUING CONTINENTAL EXPOSITION of American progress and achievement!

Neither of these wonderful expositions can be complete without the other.

Each will share enormously in the success of the other.

Millions of people will visit both expositions, to their profit and enlightenment.

They will cross America with the speed of one day's sun if they wish, or at their leisure if they will; but always in comfort and safety.

Those who travel without haste WILL SEE THE MOST.

THE year of 1939 will truly be a GREAT AMERICAN EXPOSITION YEAR, with the cities of New York and San Francisco and with all America co-operating, to give the world the most inspiring spectacle it has ever seen.

A Timely Warning

THE statement issued by President Green of the American Federation of Labor, with the official approval of the executive committee of that body, on the sit-down strike is a document that should be gravely pondered by every workingman and workingwoman in the country.

It is a talk from a workingman to his fellow-workers.

After pointing out the "grave implications detrimental to labor's interests" in the sit-in strike strategy, Mr. Green admonishes his fellow-workers that "PUBLIC OPINION WILL NOT SUPPORT SIT - DOWN STRIKES."

To lose the good opinion of the American people would be one of the greatest disasters that organized labor in America could face.

"THE PUBLIC WILL NOT TOLERATE THE ILLEGAL SEIZURE OF PROPERTY," says President Green.

It is a notable fact that no court nor any one in high authority has as yet justified these sit-down strikes as either ethical or legal.

"I THEREFORE," concludes President Green, "PUBLICLY WARN LABOR AGAINST THIS ILLEGAL PROCEDURE. BOTH PERSONALLY AND OFFICIALLY I DISAVOW THE SIT-DOWN STRIKE AS A PART OF THE ECONOMIC AND ORGANIZATION POLICY OF THE AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR."

These are courageous and sane words from the head of an organization that has been mainly instrumental in lifting the skilled workers of America to the highest living wage ever attained by any workers in the history of the world — WITHOUT SIT-DOWN STRIKES.

It is not a propitious time for our workers to desert the safe road blazed by the American Federation of Labor and its level-headed leaders for blind trails which lead to disaster.

President Green's warning should be heeded.

An "Old Man" Shows Us

E. PHILLIPS OPPENHEIM, world-famous writer, now visiting Boston, is a contradiction of the belief that life is "over at 70."

Author of nearly 150 of the most widely read detective stories of the age, Mr. Oppenheim refuses to be shelved.

Though 71, he continues to dictate from 2000 to 4000 words a day—a task that few men half his age would think of attempting every day in the year.

What is more, he plans to write at least two novels during the Summer, prepare several articles for magazines, and produce a series of "Shorts" for publication here and in England.

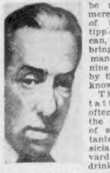
Active youth is a fine thing. Nobody can deny that. But ACTIVE OLD AGE is far more to be desired.

As long as one remains physically and mentally healthy, the time for him to retire is when the Last Call comes, never before.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, April 1—The flossy and intimate night clubs have discovered that their orchestras and bartenders can be more than mere dispensers of tunes and tipples. They can, indeed, bring much romantic feminine patronage by that quality known as It.



O. O. McIntyre

The gossip tattlers are often stressing the attachment of some debutante for a musician or Harvard boy turned drink jiggler. As a result, these employes are being selected as much for their looks as for ability. And there are some first rate Robert Taylors among them.

Incidentally, it is noticed that the Weissmuller hair cut, or rather lack of cut, is quite the bang among the heart flutterers. A sort of long bob. Between tunes, the musicians now join the ladies at their tables—an intimacy once strictly taboo.

And at almost every bar there is perched a girl or so who patently drops in just for a tete-a-tete with the mixers. The old beer hall formula reversed. The hired ladies used to be used to entice the men. Just another shift in a world whose one permanency is change.

It would be difficult to think of a more aptly named race horse than one owned by Kay Hamlin, a Walt Disney representative. The gee gee's name is Snap Judgment. And, pursuing the name theme, it would again be difficult to find a more romantic moniker than that of Richard Lockridge, the drama critic. How Laura Jean Libbey would have pounced on that one. It suggests wavy hair, Byronic collar and soulful eyes.

No. 1 Lonely Heart: A neighbor has a Fritzi Scheff-looking Swiss maid whose only recreation during her five years here is a once a week visit to a glittering Broadway cafeteria where she sits all evening over a cup of coffee, just watching the crowds.

Harlem's most opulent apartment house, The Dunbar — honoring the Dayton, O., Negro poet, Paul Laurence Dunbar—houses some of the most celebrated of the colored folk. It is an impressive structure, a Rockefeller creation, with all the white folk appointments, even to uniformed elevator operators and hot-cha door flunkies. Bill Robinson lives there. Also Duke Ellington, Cab Calloway, Adelaide Hall and the colored cartoonist, E. Simms Campbell. The Dunbar has room for housing 5000.

Bagatelles: Steig is the youngest of the cartoonists, being under 30 . . . Zerbe, the photographer, makes a handsome living photographing what is known as the "champagne set" in cafes . . . When Sinclair Lewis gets mental fog over a novel he clears the air by writing humorous skits for the lighter magazines . . . Bing Crosby's fling with race horses has set him back $300,000 . . . Mrs. Roy Howard and daughter Jane are on a trip to Australia.

The solemn looking Donald Ogden Stewart is among those widely sought as dinner guests in Hollywood and New York, between which he migrates. He is considered the perfect clown of the dining rooms—the exploiter of a dry chaff wit that soon has everybody in the proverbial stitches. He melts the starchiness of the dinner formality and is likely to incite, by expert kidding, some dowager to high jinks in the sudden belief she is quite a one. Stewart is a product of Columbus, O., and is a crony of another highly bespoke for his comedy, Robert Benchley. In our town Benchley would be called "a card."

The most salable wit in New York is spawned around midnight at Lindy's. Here gather the gag men of radio and screen, the monologists of vaudeville and the belt-coated wise crackers of Tin Pan Alley, and the like. It is a rough and ready battledore and shuttlecock of raw humor—but when picked up on the sidelines by the gleaners is polished and peddled profitably. Much of the bang-up slang comes from there too. And many sentimental song lyrics got their first lilt in the clattery atmosphere.

Thingumbobs: Estelle Taylor has the longest ermine coat in town, which she wears with a flaming red scarf . . . Jimmy Walker now has a large kennel of Irish terriers on his Long Island estate . . . The famous Chili Villa, a Will Rogers haunt, has left the Roaring Forties for a stand on Barrow street in Greenwich Village . . . Martha Deane is a radio favorite of Vassar students. Ill wind note: Most of the recently flooded Ohio river towns are enjoying a big retail trade boom.

Musing: After reviewing the Sunday hit and run accidents I have come to believe the pedestrian's place is in the home or up a shade tree.

The Moral Is—Reduce!

IT'S FUNNY WHAT BECAME OF THAT DOG I USE TO HAVE WASTE OF PUBLIC MONEY
A BALANCED BUDGET

The Federal Government will have a balanced budget when it keeps its SPENDING within its current INCOME.

There is no other way to balance a budget.

Higher taxes and borrowing only DELAY THE BALANCE. They INCREASE the obligations of the people, and DECREASE their capacity to pay them.

When the budget is OUT OF BALANCE, the RETURN TO BALANCE must be made through increase of revenues to the extent that it is POSSIBLE, and through REDUCTION OF SPENDING to the extent that is NECESSARY.

The people, through the taxes they pay, can go only PART OF THE WAY toward a balanced budget.

That's That -:- By Bruce Gustin

President Rosevelt's nomination of Judge Robert Lee Williams of Oklahoma to fill a vacancy on the United States Circuit Court of Appeals bench must have amazed a lot of people. Not that the judicial ability of Judge Williams is questioned, for it isn't, but he was 68 years old last December. And the President has advanced the theory that the judge who reaches 70 is fit only for the scrap pile and should no longer be allowed to remain on the bench.

The theory of the President's court reorganization program is that all federal judges should be retired at 70 and that what the courts need most is an infusion of YOUNGER blood. Putting a 68-year-old man on the circuit bench certainly does not inject any YOUNG blood into that tribunal. BUT it does demonstrate conclusively that the President is less interested in getting younger judges than he is in getting judges who think his way.

At the time the nomination of Judge Williams was announced there was made public at the White House a letter in which he expressed his willingness to retire when he reaches 70, and said "this would be in harmony with the President's judicial program and court plan which I indorse and approve." An appointment, under such circumstances, would be an appointment with a string tied to it. It would be a conditional appointment, made subject to the express condition that the judge retire when he reaches 70.

Both the propriety and the constitutionality of a CONDITIONAL appointment to the federal bench are open to challenge. Under the Constitution, all federal judges are appointed for life or during good behavior. If, as a condition for being appointed to a federal court, a judge can be required to give a written pledge he will retire when he reaches a certain age, why can't he be required to promise in writing that he will interpret constitutional questions in whatever way the President desires? Conditional appointments of federal judges would be a death blow to the independence of the judiciary.

Differences between the eyewitness descriptions of any happening are startling. A number of people see a disaster but their accounts of what happened usually vary and often are contradictory. Take the plane crash near Pittsburgh, for example. The pilot of another plane said it "made two complete left-hand spirals with the nose in a vertical position and it was in this position the plane struck the ground.

A farmer who was nearby said "the plane shot up in the air and then it turned end over end three times and then nosed down and crashed."

A nine-year-old girl declared "smoke was coming out of the tail."

A taxicab driver said "there was no fire."

A farmer who arrived at the scene a few minutes after the crash declared "there was no ice on the wings when I got there."

Trancontinental Western Air officials announced "a heavy deposit of ice formed on the leading edge of the ailerons, which control lateral balance, and caused the plane to go completely out of control."

If such a thing as a paradise for BOTH taxpayers and taxspenders is possible, it must be the town of Randall, Wis. This town is reported to have more money in its treasury than its officials can spend. Its $16,000 surplus can't be used to reduce property taxes because no property taxes are levied. Revenues from tavern and cigarette and utility licenses or taxes have been piling up faster than town officials can spend them. When any political subdivision worries about HOW to spend its money, that IS news.

Worries of the federal treasury are just the opposite of those of Randall, Wis. Income tax collections haven't been up to estimates. And on top of that the United States Supreme Court recently held the salary of a municipal water department official is not subject to federal income tax because a municipal water plant is an "instrumentality of the state," which is exempt from federal taxation.

'Yure's Truly'

By Winston Norman

April 1, 1937

Boston Evening American,

Dear Mr. Editor:

I just bumped into a man that give me all the latest roomers from Wash., D. C. He says these facks hasen't never come out in a paper before, and I bet you will be supprized when you publish them.

1—This man told me Mr. Lewis plans to rezign from the C. I. O. and turn his job over to Miss Perkins, becauze Mr. Lewis is been offered a better job.

2—He says Mr. Morgenthau has the Budjit secritly balanced, with $650,000,000 saved up to apply on the Natl Debt. But he don't dare give out the good news, for fear the market will crash.

3—He says Congress has decided they been hireing too many of their own relitives on the Govt Payroll, so from now on they are going to hire each other's relatives instead.

4—This man says that England and France is going to make a payt on the War Debts next month, and for Mr. Stalin's next trial in Rushia they got a prisoner that is going to break down and not confess.

5—He also says that Mr. Farley rezigned again, and Mr. Roosevelt assepted his resination again.

6—In the political circles that this man runs around in, they say the Republicans want to pass a law that no President can serve 3 terms, just in case some future President trys to serve 3 terms, and the Democrats is behind the bill also.

7—The most wonderful news of all, this man says Congress is going to pass a law where Congressmen pay their own r. r. fare, and mail out Campain Speaches with postage stamp out of their own pocket, so as not to cheat the Taxpayer.

Yure's truely,
WINSTON NORMAN.

P. S. I am going to ring that man's neck if I ever see him again.

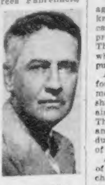
Steel Is King Again

The Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

A mixture of iron, ore, coke and limestone, in a furnace blazing at 1200 degrees Fahrenheit, boils four or five hours to become molten white metal. This is what men call "steel." Today steel is big news, just as it is in any period of prosperity, of the real kind or the boom kind.



Edwin C. Hill

Politically, we have had the phrase, "As Maine goes, so goes the nation," which has never been true and which should never be heard again after 1936. Industrially, and in the matter of economics, we have the phrase, "As steel goes, so goes business." This has been true to such a degree that everywhere the output and the prices of steel are recognized as the business barometer.

As I write this, I learn that the mills of the United States are producing 1,170,000 tons of steel a week. This is more than they have produced since the all-time high mark of 1,193,000 tons manufactured during May, the boomiest of the boom months of 1929. Employment in steel is at record heights, more than 500,000 men being at work as against some 425,000 in that same 1929, the year by which we have grown to measure the top and the bottom of many things.

But steel is more than fiery furnaces and cold figures. It is drama and romance. It personifies the age of the greatest material progress in the history of mankind. Steel is the story of the growth of the United States after the Civil War, the story of the railroads, the story of the skyscrapers, the story of Andrew Carnegie, of the Homestead riots, of William Z. Foster's strike two decades ago, and of John L. Lewis and his CIO.

PROOF OF PROGRESS

Steel today is the answer to the croakers, those who preached for various motives during the depression that we had come to the end of our rope in the matter of progress. These were the ones who said that we had reached the limits of ingenuity and productiveness. There was nothing new to build or to do. We had started to go to seed. Of such stock were the technocrats, who insisted that the machines were destroying its maker by consigning millions upon millions to endless days of unemployment.

The world needed steel 70 years ago, mostly for the railroads. It knew steel, but it used iron because the making of steel was a process running into months. The need was for a method which quickly removed the impurities.

An Eglishman, Henry Bessemer found the way. He poured the molten iron into a large pear-shaped receptacle and forced hot air through it for 20 minutes. The carbon went off in flames, and the making of steel was reduced from a matter of quarter of a year to half an hour.

About the same time, a way of making steel quickly and cheaply was hit upon by a man named Kelly. When they had settled their differences, the making of steel began in a grand way, and by 1874, the famous Lucy furnace was making 100 tons a day. Soon followed Carnegie with his steel, Frick with his coke, and, in the days of the trusts, the great combination, United States Steel.

NEW USES FOUND

By the turn of the century, frenzy of railroad building had died out. The construction of huge buildings and the advent of the automobile gave new impetus to what had grown to be the basic industry. The war days and the boom days of the late twenties kept the ball rolling.

Came the depression, and steel hit rock bottom. Hundreds of thousands of men were thrown out of work and scores of plants, representing investments of hundreds of millions of dollars, were as silent as the tombs of the pharaohs.

The railroads, as a whole, were close to bankruptcy, new automobiles were luxuries, not necessities, and foreign trade was at a standstill. Nobody who had been using steel had any use for it. The steel masters did some sober thinking. If the customers would not come to them, they must go to the customers. This they did with amazing success.

With new methods, new alloys and new equipment, they broke into the consumer goods market with a thousand kinds of steel for a thousand kinds of purposes—the making of furniture, kitchenware, plumbing and refrigerators being among the more important.

Today the heavy goods business is back. Tomorrow the building of the nation's homes is the market. Tonight the skies of the steel centers glow with the fires from the furnaces. Steel is king again.

Long live the king!

An Eventful Month

By James T. Williams, Jr.

To April is given prominent place in the national calendar of American patriotism because of two outstanding anniversaries that thoughtful Americans never forget.

The first of these is April 19, the anniversary of the Battle of Concord and Lexington "where the shot was fired that was heard 'round the world," and throughout the commonwealths of Massachusetts and Maine this anniversary is observed as "Patriots' Day."

It is a day set apart in those States—and their example could with benefit to the household of the nation be emulated throughout the Union. It is set apart by law as a holiday, and the law is respected. The people enter into the spirit of the day by "recurring to fundamentals" and by indulging in that "national recollection" which, as Edward Everett has truly said, "is the foundation of national character."

The other anniversary that gives such prominence to April in the patriotic calendar of the American family is April 30—the day on which George Washington was first inaugurated President of the United States at New York City in 1789. This is the date on which it has been decided—and quite appropriately—that the sesquicentennial celebration of the adoption of the Constitution of the United States shall close two years hence.

A NATIONAL EVENT

This celebration will begin on the 17th of next September—the anniversary of the adoption of the Constitution by the convention at Philadelphia 150 years ago. From that date the celebration will continue all through 1937-1938 until April 10, 1939.

Towards the success of this celebration the patriotic societies of the United States, including those organizations of veterans that seek to serve wholly the welfare of their country, can make the greatest contribution. And the time to begin their contribution is NOW. Now, when an insidious threat to the success of the celebration has appeared.

This threat is to be found in the allegation that the official agency created by the Congress to lead the people in making memorable their observance of the birthday of their Constitution is to be made an instrument of propaganda aimed at its undermining.

Well may the patriotic societies, supported by the veterans of all our wars, say to the propagandists:

"Hands off the sesquicentennial celebration."

Other anniversaries of historic interest and importance that the month of April always brings are April 17, the day on which Benjamin Franklin died at Philadelphia in 1790, and April 18, on the night of which, in 1775, Paul Revere made his famous midnight ride that the people of Boston and the surrounding towns never fail to celebrate on the eve of Patriot's Day.

MANY ANNIVERSARIES

In American history the month of April has been a critical month. It was on April 12, 18 that Fort Sumter was fired upon and for the ensuing four years the nation was divided by Civil War. This ended on April 9, in 1865, when Lee surrendered to Grant at Appomattox Court House.

On April 21 comes the anniversary of the declaration of war, in 1898, with Spain—a declaration that ushered in a new era for the United States. At the end of that conflict the nation found itself the involuntary if not unwilling possessor of the Philippine Islands in the far Pacific, and of Porto Rico in the Caribbean. For a decade thereafter it required the occupation of Cuba to set the Cuban people on the road to independence.

And on April 6, 1917, the United States entered the great war as an associate of the powers allied against Germany and Austria. For this reason as well as because it comes in the first week of the month in which the war for independence, the Civil War and the war with Spain began, April 6 has been set aside for national observance as ARMY DAY.

It ought to receive an observance as truly national as that given the birth of the nation on July 4. Because it was what Washington and his soldiers did and not what they or anyone else wrote or signed that brought to the American people their independence as a nation and laid the foundation for the nation of our allegiance today.

Is it any wonder that throughout the month of April the American people unite to light anew the torch of American patriotism?

Isn't It So?
